New ordinance requires changes from haulers

Garbage collectors in Sikeston have been worried about the new solid waste disposal ordinance and how it will affect them, while residents have been worried about whether enough garbage haulers will be able to stay in business to collect the trash.

For the past month or so a standoff has existed between garbage collectors and the city, each wanting to know what the other was going to do about the ordinance.

As the deadline of July 1 nears, the situation is starting to solve itself, but there are still some problems.

Five applications for private drayage licenses have been received by the city and a sixth person has indicated interest in staying in business, according to City Manager Jim Huff.

Applications from Sonny's Sanitation Service and Marvin Williams have been approved. The other applications will be ruled on in time to meet the July 1 deadline, Huff said.

As of this morning six trucks have been checked by Huff and all passed with certain conditions. Trucks inspected belonged to Edwin Carey, Jerome Johnson, Marvin Williams, Paul Tolbert, Malcolm Chappell and Willie Robinson. Some of the trucks need additional repairs, some need better seals, a couple need welding in the loading hopper and others have rust on the bodies, Huff said today. Trucks of Sonny Sanitation were being inspected later today.

In checking trucks to see that they are water tight as required, Huff said a hose will check leakage and the trucks will be graded on how well they are maintained.

Sikeston had 17 persons or businesses holding private drayage licenses under the old system. But a recent survey showed that about four of these were already out of business before the new ordinance was passed. Two or three of these just hauled their own trash and the others could not be reached for comment about their operations.

Most haulers were not willing to talk about what the new ordinance will mean to their business. Several said they only collected trash as a part- time job and could not handle the extra expense the ordinance would require. Others plan on staying in business if their applications and trucks are approved.

The trash haulers with a small business and with open bed trucks will have to either quit or buy the new trucks if they are to comply with the ordinance. The ordinance requires that trucks be water tight; be maintained in a safe, clean and sanitary condition; and be constructed, maintained and operated to prevent spillage of solid waste.

The new ordinance also requires that a person have a license to collect, transport, process or dispose of solid waste within the corporate limits of the city.

The private drayage haulers must also file and maintain with the city manager evidence of a satisfactory public liability insurance policy, covering all operations of the applicant pertaining to the business.

All vehicles will be required to carry policy coverage of no less than $100,000 for each person injured or killed, no less than $300,000 in the event of injury or death of two or more persons in any single accident and no less than $50,000 for damage to property.

The licenses cost $50 for each collection vehicle used. The old licenses were $35 for each truck.

The application must state the nature of the permit desired; the characteristics of solid wastes to be collected, transported, processed, or disposed; the number of solid waste vehicles to be operated; the precise location or locations of solid waste processing or disposal facilities to be used; boundaries of the collection area; and the rate schedule specifying the monthly cost of each type of service to be offered.

It's in the bag

A problem to the solid waste haulers is that the city must approve the landfill they will use, and thus far the city has not approved any landfill for disposal of the city's wastes. The ordinance states that disposal at other than an approved site will be cause for suspension of the private collector license.

In reference to drayage haulers, the city ordinance says that all residential solid waste shall be collected twice weekly with at least 48 hours between collections. Commercial solid waste shall be collected twice weekly except for solid waste containing garbage or hazardous material which shall be collected daily or at such intervals as are necessary.

Sonny Glaus of Sonny's Sanitation Service admits that his trucks were not built to be totally water tight, but that he had put new rubbers on the trucks and plans to put new bottoms in them before the deadline.

He added that even the new trucks are not completely water tight. "I talked to a friend of mine in St. Louis. He bought a truck brand new... gave $38,000 for it and in a week's time that thing was leaking. "If they will show me that these new trucks will not leak and do this and that, then I'd say yes, I would be glad to buy them,... but they are not on the market, he added.

Glaus said drayage haulers do not know where they stand with the city under the new ordinance and have been trying to find out, but to no avail.

If the trucks are not approved, Glaus said it would take six to eight months to get delivery on a new truck.

The amount of insurance required is also an extra expense to most of the haulers. Glaus said he has had that amount of insurance for eight years. Other haulers contacted said they did not have that much insurance.

Rates for residents are expected to go up because of the added cost of insurance, the higher cost of the landfill and the cost of mileage to and from the landfill site. Glaus explained that haulers must figure truck operating costs on an hourly scale, along with mileage, labor costs, upkeep and profit.

"If you don't get some profit you can't maintain your business," Glaus said. On a national scale he explained that it costs from $25 to $45 an hour for a collection operation.

Drayage haulers must pay 75 cents per cubic yard of uncompacted solid wastes at the nearest landfill near Morley. This has to raise rates to the residents because it is costing the haulers more than the old city dump did.

Also, several of the haulers contacted said they have been picking up trash only once a week in residential sections and will face added expense to pick it up twice a week.

Time is money to drayage haulers, as it is to men in other businesses. That is the reason Glaus has devised a new plan for his customers which requires his customers to buy plastic bags from him for a cost that would include the cost of collection.

The bags must be sealed and placed on the curbside on that person's collection day. "This system has worked well in other communities," Glaus said. The system allows people to pay only for the trash they have. In the past, he said people with a lot of trash paid the same as people with little to be collected.

At one point, in reference to the collection of fees, Glaus said, "Why should we have to comply with the law when the city isn't?" The state ordinance states that the city should contract for the collection of waste from all the residents, with the city collecting the service charge from the residents. The city does not plan to collect fees now, although Glaus feels that would help the collectors.

"The way I look at it," Glaus said, "on July 1, 1974, there are going to be a lot of court injunctions filed against cities." July 1, 1974, is the deadline set by the state for a plan to be submitted to the state for approval. The state will crack down in 1974, Glaus said.

It is still not clear what is really going to happen in the next few days, or if parts of the city will be without collection facilities, but it should be clearer what the haulers face with the new ordinance.

The standoff between the city and haulers will come to an end in a few days, and until that time, it seems that no one really knows what is going to happen, but it appears that the city will have enough haulers.

Phelps to speak in Dexter

DEXTER -- Lt. Gov. William Phelps will serve as grand marshall in a parade at 12:30 p.m. Saturday to kick off Centennial Week festivities.

Also invited to ride in the parade is 159th District Rep. C.F. Cline of Sikeston.

The Spirit of St. Louis Drum and Bugle Corps will be a parade attraction and will present a 30-minute concert on the Big Star Store parking lot following the parade.

Others in the parade will be the police chief; fire chief; Shrine patrol minibikes; Jo Jewels, Little Miss Dexter; Dexter High School band; National Guard marching unit; antique vehicles. Shrine mounted patrol on palamino horses; fire trucks; National Guard vehicles; and local saddle clubs.

Electric guitars stolen

CHARLESTON -- The Mississippi County Sheriff's department is investigation a burglary at the Cecil Taylor home near Dogwood.

The break-in was discovered Thursday night by two boys who had gone to the Taylor home to feed Taylor's dogs while the family is away on vacation.

Deputy sheriff Mike Baughman, who was notified about 10 p.m., said entry was gained by kicking in the lower panel of a wooden rear door of the home.

The only items believed to have been taken were two electric guitars.

Young woman is jailed in assault case

CHARLESTON — Gloria Jean Swift, 17, of Wyatt is being held in Mississippi County jail and charges of assault with a deadly weapon are expected to be filed today, according to Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman.

Miss Swift, who was arrested by Wyatt town marshal John Pearson, is accused of attacking Junior Curry of Wyatt with a beer bottle during a fight in Charlie Jackson's Tavern in Wyatt Thursday night.

Fire threatens 100,000 gallon storage tank

A trash fire threatened for a while Thursday night to become something much larger when it ignited oil leaking from a 100,000-gallon storage tank behind Krause's War Surplus, 833 W. Malone Ave.

Firemen said the oil had leaked out into a ditch from the tank. When they arrived at 7:45 p.m., the flames had reached the tank, firemen said, but were extinguished without damage.

At 10:35 p.m. firemen were called to the Lyle Davis home, 1614 Oklahoma, to extinguish a fire in a chair after neighbors noticed smoke coming from the house. No one was at home at the time of the blaze.

Firemen said damage was minor. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Grower is new humane officer

Terry Grower, 23, of Route Four, has been named Humane Officer, according to City Manager Jim Huff.

Auxiliary Police Officer Dan Cannon, who has been Humane Officer since the registration of Jim Sherwood, is quiting to take another job. Grower began riding with Cannon today.

Grower is married and has one child.

No-burning law begins Sunday

Starting Sunday, a new city anti-burning ordinance will go into effect in an effort to bring Sikeston in line with new state environmental control regulations.

The ordinance prohibits burning of trash and garbage except in an incinerator approved by the Air Conservation Department.

The ordinance will be enforced by the fire department, which has the authority to file charges against violators

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said today that he would probably act on a complaint basis against violators. He said he would probably give out a warning or two before filing charges. Violators could receive fines up to $500.

Linnemeyer said that if the ordinance is not enforced, the city could get in trouble with the Air Conservation Department.

He added that if a trash fire turned into something more serious than burning garbage, he might dispense with the warnings and file charges. He cited the example of a trash fire Thursday night which, for a short time, threatend a 100,000 - gallon oil tank behing Krausse's War Surplus Store on West Malone Avenue.

The city has had an open burning ordinance for many years, but it has not been enforced. The ordinance states that burning rubbish, refuse, leaves, grass, wood, paper and garbage in open fires is specifically prohibited unless the fire department gives approval.

Burning was allowed in containers with smoke stacks or covers, to prevent sparks from spreading but a large number of people burned their trash in open containers.

Farmers can continue to burn their fields, provided they do so only for the removal of stubble. Current state air pollution regulations have allowed the burning and probably will not be changed, according to a spokesman for the Air Conservation Department.

He said it would be almost impossible to enforce a prohibition against field fires.

Nothing guarantees success

Cities fight for industry

Competition is strong among cities seeking new industry and nothing can guarantee a community's success, according to William B. Barrett of West Point, Miss.

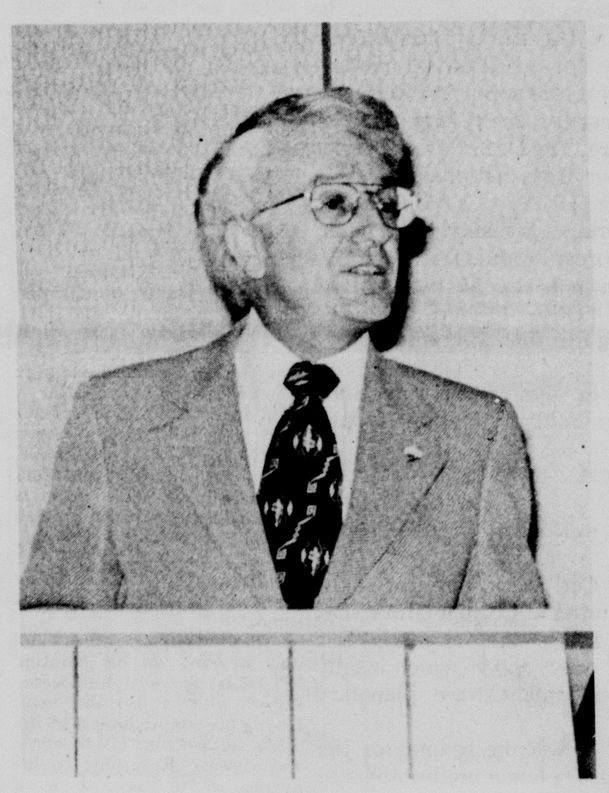

Barrett spoke at noon Thursday to the Chamber of Commerce. He is chairman of the Ozark Industrial Development Commission and executive director of the Northeastern Mississippi Industrial Development Association.

He said there are 16,000 different organizations in the country seeking new industry and that enticing one into the community is a difficult task. However, Barrett said industry will spend $35.5 billion on new plants this year and $42 billion next year.

A community can hope to get one firm for every 20 which visits the city, Barrett said.

"Industry goes where it is invited", he said, "and stays and expands where it is well treated."

An industry will locate in an area because it is close to markets and raw materials or will provide an adequate labor pool, he said.

William Barrett

In addition, to succeed, a city must have an organization which will represent the city in its dealings with industry. The city must have a program to improve the community and find and sell the prospects on the community. Sites or available buildings are a must. There must be an adequate labor supply.

There are seven other additions to a city's industrial development program which can help attract industry, Barrett said. They include good leadership in the organization which deals with the businesses; affiliation with other organizations, such as the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission; and an effective committee. Barrett suggested five- man committees which should include the mayor, a banker and a plant manager.

Money is also needed to run a development program; comprehensive data is needed on the city, such as number of laborers available and power supplies. Also helpful are an available building and a good, clean community.

Scott damages top $1.8 million

BENTON — Glenn Greene of Sikeston, Scott County Civil Defense director, told the County Court Thursday that personal and public property damages totaled $1,864,641.95 during spring flooding in the county.

Itemized damages in the county included:

Oran — business, $36,000; homes, $12,000; roads and streets, $7,800; total, $55,800.

Chaffee — business, $753,000; homes, $94,737.95; roads and streets, $56,400; total, $904,197.95.

Scott City — business and residential, $404,197; personal, $86,597; public, $105,000; total, $595,794.

Illmo — business, $90,400; residential, $78,450; streets, $15,000; total, $183,850.

Scott County rural roads and bridges, $124,000.

Kathleen Gipson, director of the Scott County Welfare Department, gave the court a list of banks in the county that will handle food stamps. Included are: Scott City Bank and Trust Co., Oran State Bank, Bank of Chaffee, First National Bank of Sikeston and Tri-County Bank of Morehouse.

Mrs. Gipson said persons eligible for food stamps may purchase the stamps at any of the five banks and can spend them at any store where a food stamp sign is displayed.

Kay Hymas, a representative of the State Highway Department from Jefferson City, met Monday with C. R. Waters of Waters & Associates, Engineers of Sikeston to assess damages to the county roads, bridges and ditches in the first flooding.

Scott County will host the monthly luncheon meeting at 10 a.m. Saturday of Southeast Missouri County Officers Association at the Sikeston Ramada Inn.

Officials from Scott, Mississippi, Cape Girardeau, Bollinger, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Iron and Perry counties will attend the meeting.

Paul F. Dow of Jefferson City, executive director of the Missouri Association of Counties, will attend the meeting to explain some of the new laws affecting counties.

Train smashes car sitting on RR Tracks

An automobile was demolished about 3:45 a.m. today when it was struck by a Frisco train at the Salcedo Road crossing.

Bill Boshears, 19, of 103 Selma told police that he was turning around on the tracks when the engine of his car died. He left the car there and went home, apparently to get help in moving it. Boshears said he didn't realize his car was over the tracks.

The vehicle was struck by the train whose engine, C. R. Harmon of Cape Girardeau, said he did not see the car until it was too late to stop.

The impact knocked the car 60 feet down the tracks.

Boshears was arrested for parking his car within 50 feet of the railroad tracks.

Stereo and speakers taken

A stereo tape player and two speakers were stolen Thursday night or early today from an automobile belonging to Marvin Brown, 220 Dye, according to police.

Police said the tape player and speakers were taken from the car between 11 p.m. Thursday and 7:15 a.m. today while the car was parked at Brown's home.

The value of the player and speakers was placed at $68.

LUMBER AND WHEAT

What do lumber and wheat have in common? Well, along with steel, soybeans, copper, corn, gold and just about any other agricultural product or natural resource you can name, they are in heavy and growing demand throughout the world. And although Washington is still interested in beefing up American exports to improve the balance of payments, export controls have been placed on wheat and will be placed on logs and lumber. With both wheat and lumber, sales abroad have run down domestic supplies, creating a demand pinch that has sent prices soaring.

The Senate Banking Committee voted 10-2 May 16 to impose ceilings on log and lumber exports beginning Sunday, July 1 -- the beginning of the 1974 fiscal year. The bill would hold log exports to a total of 2.25 billion board feet and lumber to 1.2 feet during fiscal 1974. Even if Congress fails to act on the bill incorporating the ceilings, lumber exports are expected to be cut back. Japanese and American negotiators have already agreed to impose a voluntary quota on lumber shipments from the United States. Japan will hold its fiscal 1974 imports down to 90 per cent of what it imported during 1972.

Reasons for the concern are not hard to find. The price of construction lumber has risen by 50 per cent over the past two years, according to Department of Labor statistics. Plywood is up 28 per cent. The National Association of Home Builders claims that rising lumber prices over 1971 and 1972 have added $1,200 to the cost of an average home. And higher homebuilding costs, along with higher interest rates, mean higher rents and mortgage payments.

The upward pressure on grain prices should be short - lived. The Agriculture Department can unleash the nation's farmers to plant a record harvest -- weather permitting. Increasing the supply of lumber is more difficult. For one thing, it takes at least 20 years for a crop of trees to mature. The U. S. Forest Service has increased sales of timber from national forests -- from 10 billion board feet in 1972 to 11.8 billion this year. But the lumber shortage is likely to remain, according to the National Forest Products Association, until a way is found to unlock the 59 per cent of American timber land that is held by farmers and other landowners in plots averaging less than 100 acres.

GOOD HEAVENS!

Billions for defense, but nothing for the search for extraterrestrial life.

That is the lament of Dr. Carl Sagan, director of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies at Cornell University, who writes in Intellectual Digest that as many as a hundred billion stars in our own galaxy (which is only one of billions of galaxies) might have planetary systems like our own.

Just as the military brass raise the specter of the U.S.S.R. every time they want a few more bombers or something, Sagan notes that the Soviet Union "is now actively pursuing a radioastronomical search for signals from extraterrestrial civilizations on planets of other stars."

For what we spend for a few bombers, says Sagan, we could build a major astronomical facility and be doing the same thing.

Earth- centered cynics, of course, will be tempted to argue that if we spent money NEITHER on bombers NOR in looking for extraterrestrial life we'd be even further ahead.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a movie usherette gets tired of hearing:

"Baby, with a face like yours, you ought to be on the screen yourself."

"We'd like two seats, please, not too far up front, not too far back, and not too much in the middle either — if you know what I mean."

"There's a full moon out tonight, Gloria. That means you'll have trouble keeping half the audience out of the other half's laps. There is nothing like a full moon to bring out the lovers."

"How can I put out my cigar when it's not even lit? I just use it to chew on when the plot gets exciting."

"Young lady, I wish to report a possible sex fiend. No, he didn't touch me or anything, but I could tell by the way he looked that he had something on his mind."

"Hey, Miss, could you hold my baby while I go to the powder room? I have to have a cigarette or I'll die."

"You get to see the same picture so often, I bet you sometimes wish thy'd run it backward, don't you?"

"Young lady, I forgot to get some popcorn. I'll give you a dollar if you run out to the lobby and get me some — and you can keep the change."

"In the old days I could see a better film for this for 15 cents — and get a free piece of dishware, too."

"Would you help me, Miss? I slipped off my shoes to be more comfortable, and I think some smark aleck kid sitting next to me kicked one of them into the next aisle."

"Listen, sweet stuff, if I hang around until you get off work, how about having a drink with me, and I'll take you to see the midnight flick in the next block?"

PIPES FROM TEXAS GO TO ALASKAN CITY

The installation of storm drains to improve a highway in the state of Alaska was an entineering challenge which was solved by a Texas product.

Located 150 miles southwest of Anchorage, the town of Soldotna serves as an important junction on the highway serving Alaska's scenic, historic and commercially important Kenai peninsula.

Soldotna is located on relatively flat ground and engineers decided this flat grade required pipe with smoother flow characteristics than the corrugated metal pipe used on the rest of the job.

Reinforced plastic mortar pipe was selected by Green Construction of Anchorage, contractor on the job, and shipped 4,000 miles from a Johns- Manville plant located in Denison, Texas.

Anger is often more harmful than the injury that caused it.

When Leonardo da Vinci was working on his painting "The Last Supper," he became angry with a certain man. Losing his temper he lashed the other fellow with bitter words and threats. Returning to his canvas he attempted to work on the face of Jesus, but was unable to do so. He was so upset he could not compose himself for the painstaking work. Finally he put down his tools and sought out the man and asked his forgiveness. The man accepted his apology and Leonardo was able to return to his workshop and finish painting the face of Jesus.

REALISM AND SECURITY

While the visit of Leonid Brezhnev to the United States raises hopes of improved relations with the Soviet Union in the future, it is the duty of America's leaders to work unceasingly to strengthen the nation's defenses. Unfortunately, the Soviets have a record of duplicity in the conduct of foreign affairs. If they detect an advantage, they may abandon the detente overnight and engage in new threatening actions.

The American people can be thankful, therefore, that they have realistic leaders in the country's defense establishment. William P. Clements, Acting Secretary of Defense, is one of those leaders. While the nation waits for the Senate to confirm Secretary of Defense- designate James R. Schlesinger, Mr. Clement is running the Defense Department with a firm hand. Mr. Clement's realism was evidenced in a recent news conference in which he said: "Regardless of whether we exchange students and have traveling basektball teams and commercial treaties, what I'm interested in is what capabilities the Russian armed forces have. I think I have good reason for apprehenson." This kind of realistic thinking is America's first line of defense.

American citizens also can be thankful that they have the same quality leadership in the most senior position of uniformed authority. Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, USN, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, displays a strictly realistic view of the nation's power position with respect to the Soviets.

In a recent address to the American Ordnance Assn., Adm. Moorer pointed out that the U. S. entered the decade of the seventies mired in an unwanted war and at "the end of an era of overwhelming U. S. superiority in military power." Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara's disastrous mistakes in defense policy planning in the 1960s caused the United States to lose the wide margin of military superiority that assured peace and security.

Adm. Moorer recited the grim facts of the existing situation, noting that the "USSR has now surpassed the United States in number of (missile) delivery vehicles ... With respect to megatons, the USSR already far surpasses the U. S. and is expected to maintain its predominant lead." The admiral warned that the U. S. technological lead in defense systems "has been steadily narrowing over the past decade."

The ordinary citizen wonders how it is that the Soviets get so much bang for a buck, to use a phrase coined by an earlier Secretary of Defense. Adm. Moorer explained that, remarking that "in 1964 manpower and related costs absorbed about 43 per cent of the U. S. defense budget. This year, these same costs have risen to 56 per cent of budget outlays -- an increase of 13 percentage points in 10 years. On the Soviet side,, they are spending not more than 35 per cent of their budget on manpower costs."

Put in other terms, the Soviets are enjoying the benefits of a Spartan society. They don't offer handsome cash bonuses to keep skilled servicemen on duty. They don't provide a military salary scale competitive with the civilian economy. They don't devote large sums to constructing comfortable crew quarters on warships. With the savings they achieve in manpower, they can afford to buy more missiles, aircraft, ships and tanks.

The anti-defense lobby in Congress is agitating for massive cuts in an already inadequate U. S. defense budget. The foes of preparedness complain that the defense budget is extravagant. But, as Adm. Moorer said in his address to the AOA, "on a comparable buying- power basis, the proposed defense budget is 10 per cent lower" than the pre- Vietnam 1964 defense budget. This is the kind of factual information that Congress must pay attention to if America is to enjoy national security in the years ahead.

OIL FIRMS BOOSTING ENVIRONMENTAL FUNDS

Petroleum companies are spending an average of some $3.3 million a day to protect the U.S. environment, according to preliminary results of an American Petroleum Institute survey.

The survey indicates that estimated environmental expenditures during the past year totaled $1.2 billion, of which more than $1 billion was spent on air and water conservation. The rest of the money went for land restoration, solid waste disposal and noice control.

This year's estimated spending on air and water conservation is four times as great as in 1966, the first year for which figures were gathered. The total for the seven-year period is expected to reach $4.5 billion.

During a hike in the woods a troop of boy scouts came across an abandoned section of railroad track. Each, in turn, tried walking the rails but eventually lost his balance and tumbled off.

Suddenly two of the boys, after considerable whispering, offered to bet that they could both walk the entire length of the track without falling off. Challenged to make good their boast, the two boys jumped up on opposite rails, extended a hand to balance each other, and walked the entire section of track with no difficulty whatever.

There, in a nutshell, is the principle of modern business and community living. The day of the hermit and the lone wolf are gone forever. We do things better, we produce more, and we live better by helping each other. The fellow who lends a helping hand benefits himself at the same time as he helps the other fellow.

The reverse is also true. When we don't help each other, when we don't cooperate, the whole system starts to rattle and shake.

The difference between a good company and a poor one, an effective department and an inefficient one, is often reflected in the cooperation, or lack of it, among the people who work there. When people help each other, freely and voluntarily, there's a spirit of teamwork that makes a department or company really go — a pleasure to be associated with. When there's no cooperation — no spirit of the helping hand freely given — what might have been pleasant jobs become grudging chores. Do you recall when Edmund Hillary and his native guide, Tenzing, made their historic climb of Mt. Everest? Coming down from the peak Hillary suddenly lost his footing. Tenzing held the line taut and kept them both from falling by digging his ax into the ice. Later Tenzing refused any special credit for saving Hillary's life; he considered it a routine part of the job. As he put it: "Mountain climbers always help each other."

Should the rest of us be any different?

"THE CROWDING SYNDROME"

Caroline Bird, who wrote the provocative book "Born Female" in which the liabilities of being a woman were presented in a highly readable fashion, has now written another book, entitled "The Crowding Syndrome". Her latest work is devoted to presenting an optimistic view of our evermore crowded planet.

Unlike the many who look to the future and see only doom caused by too many people, too many things and too much talk, Caroline Bird in "The Crowding Syndrome" endeavors to show how we have simply been looking at all our problems backward. She takes the position that instead of bewailing the idea that the world will soon have four billion people and employing makeshift, largely futile attempts to change the probability, we should view the situation realistically and start developing bold new ways to feed, house and support the growing population. Her suggestions and recommendations will stir controversy, especially those that inescapably indicate a course of greater government intervention in our lives. Nevertheless, the book is a titillating attempt to look at the future with optimism -- a future that a lot of people are tempted to turn away from in despair.

NIX ON TAX HIKE

Campaign promises notwithstanding, the Nixon Administration is reported considering proposals to raise the tax on gasoline and other unnamed items. Despite pledges made during the 1972 campaign not to "add to the tax burden of the American wage earner", White House economic advisors argue that tax increases would curb gas consumption, help to balance the Federal budget and have the effect of cooling off the inflated economy. This represents a complete reversal of the Administration's strategy of last November, when Nixon expressed the fear that to increase the tax burden would "do much to destroy the incentives which produce the progress we want."

This assessment was not less correct before the election than now. The Administration must look to other measures to accomplish these economic objectives. It lies within the power of the Federal Reserve to partially reduce inflation, by controlling the supply of money and interest rates on loans. The problem of gas consumption can be overcome far more realistically, by eliminating price controls and allowing the increase in price to adjust the demand for existing supplies. The price increase would consequently provide incentive for exploration and the building of new refineries by the oil industry. A more constructive solution towards balancing the Federal budget would be to further cut Federal expenditures and eliminate unnecessary governmental excesses which are helping inflate the economy.

In Alpaca Revisited, the novel describing life in the mythical republic of Alpaca, it was observed that higher taxes are no remedy for inflation; they result only in more inflation. Higher taxes absorb some purchasing power, but they increase all costs of doing business, in production, transportation and distribution, which results in higher prices and increased inflation. Rather than raising taxes, the Administration should concentrate on alleviating the tax burden by reducing domestic spending programs and allow the personal enterprise profit-motive system to operate unhindered.

Inside Labor

Inside Phase our:

Say New Controls Appear Much Like

Phase Three --- With Razor - Sharp Enforcers

WASHINGTON —— By the time "deputy president" of the U.S. George Shultz reached for his wine glass at the Israeli Embassy party Monday night, it had been a long pre-Phase Four day even for an ex-fighting Marine. Wearily and wistfully, he raised his drink in a toast to the guest of honor, Israeli finance minister and strong man Pinhas Sapir.

"In the circle of finance ministers," said Shultz, "Mr. Sapir is not only senior but wisest. He proved his wisdom by instituting a wage-price freeze while he was out of the country."

Laughter. Sympathy. But no advice. Perhaps Phase Four watchers should keep an eye on Shultz's travel plans.

Thus far these are not on his schedule - a tough one. It must be if he's to get the new control system blueprint on paper to satisfy President Nixon's eagerness to meet a July 15 deadline for de-icing the Freeze.

It's all rolling. At 11 o'clock Monday morning, Shultz and the more and more visible Cost of Living czar Prof. John (it will be all right, Jack) Dunlop met in the Treasury building with four policy-making labor chiefs -- George Meany; his AFL-CIO second-in-command, Lane Kirkland; the Seafarers' Paul Bunyanesque Paul Hall; and the affable steel leader I.W. "Abe" Abel.

It was the first of the consultative sessions arranged by the executive in charge of such consultations, one John Larson, former assistant secretary of the Interior Dept. for program policy. It was an amiable hour-long session. Consensus: Phase Four would have to be tough across the board. Reports have it -- no new wage freeze. Just more rigid enforcement of the Phase Two 5.5 per cent yearly wage ceiling plus fringes plus elimination of "inequities."

At 4 o'clock, Jake Dunlop called the powerful Cost of Living Council to order. The ex-Harvard dean was under the gun: rumor had it that angry fowl farmers, squeezed between the retail price ceiling and unlimited costs of rocketing feed prices, were planning to send him carloads of chicks they couldn't afford to raise.

Shultz listened most of the time. Talk was serious. Consensus: too many bids for exceptions from the freeze. And there must be an appeal to Congress for new laws permitting the cutting off of exports and for the emptying of stockpiles to ease the supply at home. And Phase Four must be tough.

Other consultative sessions were schedulced. Former Defense Deputy Secretary David Packard had set one up with businessmen in San Francisco. There would be a July 4 holiday hiatus for some. But not for Shultz. He might not even get a chance to play golf with Meany who appears to have a case of tendonitis -- ominous for the pre—Phase Four atmosphere.

For Shultz and Dunlop and company have an appointment with the Cost of Living Council Labor - Management Advisory Committee Tuesday morning, July 10.

It should all be on paper them. That day it is expected Dunlop will come in with plans for a ceiling on business executive compensation, bonuses, etc. And for a plan to freeze rents. And for a beefing up of the "bureaucracy" --- a mighty vital word from now on. He should have the whole spectrum. The labor chiefs won't budge without a guarantee of tough controls on foods and some word on rents.

If this timetable is kept, there may be a short freeze, the phrase Prof, Herbert Stein, Economic Advisers Council chairman, is using. His deadline is July 13. A Friday.

But the President could hit the tube on Sunday, July 15. As Mr. Nixon did in 1971, he could use one of two options. He could tell the public what he's going to tell them: The freeze will run another month. But here is what Phrase Four will be. Or he could, if the crunch is glaciering small businesses to death, simply lift the freeze without a 30-day notice.

But what of Phase Four? Again, few know. The President is the arbiter. He will take his packet of advice to his hideaway in the Executive Office Building, confer with his ace speechwriter Ray Price, and work it out by himself.

There are only clues now to the new phase. Stein has been saying it will be mostly cosmetic. That the freeze was merely "psychological." That it is the "overture necessary to create the atmosphere for the opera which follows, but disappointing if the opera doesn't satisfy. The opera is Phase Four."

The theme is much like Phase Three. With enforcement attached. The Cost of Living Council has Pay and Price Divisions. These will be beefed up. They will be put in the hands of experienced professionals. They will crack down on violations of the phase. The big stick will be jerked from the closet.

There will be a big bureaucracy. Delays. Slowing down approvals. As Shultz said the other day: "In the theory of controls, it is clear that one of the main reasons why they achieve whatever they achieve is through bureaucratic delay...

"Well, what happens is it (wage and price increase applications --VR) gets processed, argued about, referred, sent back to you, and so on and so on and so on, and then three months later, you get to do half what you applied for, and then a little bit later you get to the other half..."

"What was going to happen happened, but it doesn't happen as fast."

There's a swift view of Phase Four.If it doesn't work, George Shultz himself may take a long trip for a toast by Pinhas Sapir. All Rights Reserved

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Big H and Little H

WASHINGTON— White House insiders can hardly believe that Larry Higby has managed to ride out the Watergate storm, avoid the public spotlight and keep his job as a presidential deputy.

Under the Byzantine regime of former staff chief H.R. Haldeman, the brusque, bookish Higby, still in his 20s, occupied the catbird's seat. He was Haldeman's Haldeman. Few got past Haldeman into see the President; few got past Higby into see Haldeman. They were known around the White House as "Big H" and "little h."

Taking his cue from Haldeman, "little h" was curt, arrogant, insensitive. Senators have complained to us that their calls to the President would be routed through Higby who handled them abruptly and, on at least one occasion, he kept a prominent senator on hold.

Higby was totally involved in almost everything Haldeman did. Haldeman even stopped by in his White House limousine to pick up Higby in the mornings and to drop him off at his home in the evenings. Our White House sources insist Higby couldn't possibly have been unaware of Haldeman's Watergate involvement.

Specifically, they claim that Haldeman's political aide, Gordon Strachan, who allegedly submitted the Watergate reports to Haldeman, went through Higby almost without exception. However, Higby has told the Senate Watergate investigators quite a different story. He has sworn that he was not privy to the Watergate information, that Strachan dealt directly with Haldeman on this subject.

Both Haldeman and Strachan have left the White House under a cloud, but Higby remains on the payroll in good standing. Indeed, he received a pay raise last February.

Footnote: Long after Haldeman's departure, he continued to visit Higby almost daily at the White House. Higby refused to talk to us. Through a press spokesman, however, he denied any involvement in the Watergate affair. He explained that he continued to see Haldeman to help tie up loose ends.

REST HOUSES: While most Americans vacation at overpriced and overcrowded resorts packed next to their neighbors like coins in a pocket, a few well- connected bureaucrats are able to loll in the nation's most picturesque spots--- with the taxpayers picking up most of the tab.

From the lofty vistas of the Grand Tetons to delightfully deserted stretches of beach in the Virgin Islands, bigwigs from Congress, the White House and the government departments can enjoy the national parks in style.

The National Park Service, always ready to appease the powerful, operates 10 "rest houses" where VIPs can cavort without having to worry about the high cost of living.

The big guns of the Nixon Administration have shown a special affinity for Camp Hoover in the Shenandoah National Park not far from Washington. Among those who have relaxed at this sylvan retreat are Attorney General Elliot Richardson, acting FBI Director William Ruckelshaus, Deputy Budget Director Fred Malck and, on a slow weekend, Ronald Walker, who heads the park service.

Others have ventured as far as St. Johns or St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands to soak up the sun during the winter months. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, White House telecommunications czar Clay Whitehead and Guy Simpler, an assistant to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, are among the winter tourists who enjoyed the surf and sand during the expensive season for only $10 a day. This modest fee included the services of a government- paid caretaker.

Another visitor to the islands, Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., was irritated when other VIPs on the waiting list cut short his stay after only two weeks at the waterfront haven.

At Brinkerhoff Lodge in the Grand Tetons, the bill goes up to $45 a day for the park service's most luxurious villa. But those who have stayed there find it a bargain. The price includes maid service as well as a park ranger at the bureaucrat's beck and call.

None of these quarters, of course, are available to the millions of ordinary Americans who visit the parks.

Footnote: The park service would like to close down these fancy villas if the pampered bigwigs would permit it.

4 injured in 2 area accidents

Four persons were injured in two area accidents Thursday, according to the highway patrol.

Kathy Edmond, 17, of Perryville was slightly injured at 6:25 p.m. one mile west of Perry County on Route J when she lost control of her car, ran off the road and overturned.

Also injured were Renita Edmond, 14, minor eye injury and Patricia Edmond, 16, possible back and chest injury. All three were taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryvlle.

A truck and a car collided at 1:45 p.m. on Route N 10 miles southeast of Doniphan.

The accident occurred when a car driven west by Matthew Ruddock, 15, of Doniphan crossed the centerline and struck head on with a truck driver by Johnny Ray Harris, 42, of Doniphan.

Ruddock received a cut to his right eye and was treated at a doctor's office in Doniphan.

Rockets powered by an ion discharge may reach speeds up to 100,000 m.p.h.

Woman cited for contempt

NEW MADRID — Circuit Judge William L. Ragland Thursday cited a former Sikeston woman, Mrs. Gloria L. Gilmore Sheroan of Glasgow, Ky., for contempt of court and ordered her minor son, Hugh Marvin Gilmore Jr. be made a ward of the court and returned to the state of Missouri.

Mrs. Sheroan was cited when she failed to appear in court to show why her former husband, Hugh Marvin Gilmore of Sikeston has been denied visitation rights with their son.

Mrs. Gilmore was granted care and custody of the child and the father was awarded reasonable visitation rights when the couple was divorced on April 27, 1971.

Gilmore charged that he has made repeated attempts to obtain reasonable visitation privileges and has been refused permission to have his child.

In a written answer filed to Gilmore's charges, Mrs. Sheroan denied she had refused Gilmore reasonable visitation rights. She requested the court to set definite terms for Gilmore's visitation rights, and stated travel difficulities would probably prevent her appearance in court Thursday.

12 treated for injuries

Twelve accident patients were treated Thursday in the emergency room of Missouri Community Hospital.

Woman charged with assault waives hearing; bound over

CHARLESTON— Lucille Wilson of Charleston Route Two waived preliminary hearing on a felony charge of assault with intent to kill Thursday morning before Magistrate T.J. Brown, Jr. and was bound over to Circuit Court.

Mrs. Wilson, charged with the June 1 assault on Andrew Phillips with an axe, is free on $2,500 bond and is to appear in Circuit Court July 10.

Robert "Butch" Kemp of East Prairie waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of burglary involving breaking and entering. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Kemp and Wayne Dalton Rigsby, also of East Prairie, are accused of breaking into Turnbo's Tavern June 16 and stealing three cases of beer and food items. Rigsby's case was continued to July 5 and he is free on $2,500 bond.

A motion filed by Leslie Allen Achter for the disqualification of Judge Brown was sustained by the court and Magistrate Lloyd Briggs of Benton will be called to hear the three counts of burglary filed against Achter.

Roy Eugene Patrick of Charleston was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail on a driving while intoxicated charge and 10 days for driving while his operator's license was revoked. The sentences are to run concurrently.

A charge of common assault against Thomas Gant Williams brought a 30- day suspended sentence and one year probation. He was ordered to pay court costs of $24.20, obey the law and stay away from the home of his grandmother.

Misdemeanor charges and fines included: Dennis Clyde Gross of Charleston, careless and imprudent driving, $31; Robert Lee Waters of Bertrand, Missouri resident with out- of- state operator's license, No. 21; James Henry Reynolds of Bertrand, expired operator's license, $26; Dennis Neal Adams of Sikeston, operating motorcycle while not motorcycle qualified, $21; and Alex B. Zilafro of East Prairie, driving while intoxicated, $122.85.

A charge of no operator's or chauffeur's license against Jackie Russell Tomlin of Oran was dismissed and costs were certified to Mississippi County. Also dismissed was a common assault charge against Phillip Sullivan. Costs in the case were certified to the county. An account suit brought against James and Martha Carlisle was dismissed by Dr. Robert L. Robbins Jr.

Cases continued to July 5 included Courtney Hugh Blackburn of Cairo, Ill., failure to exercise care; Mary Thompson Marshall of Charleston, driving while intoxicated and speeding; Paul Casner Brown of Illmo, overlength; and Larry Dale Houston of East Prairie, speeding.

Continued to July 12 was a charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, against Jimmie Darrell Hicks of Sikeston. A charge of tampering with a motor vehicle against Mike Harvell was continued to July 19.

A warrant was issued for Albert Damon Long of Sikeston after failure to appear on a speeding charge.

Ann Landers

Mothers are warned never to leave children alone

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please, please tell mothers, whether they live in big cities or small towns, that they must NEVER leave their small children alone.

I have a friend who causes me untold anxiety. She has a six- year- old boy, a five- year- old girl and a 10- month- old baby. She runs to the Post Office (three blocks away), to the grocery store and to her girl friend's house for a two- hour coffeeklatch. All day long she is running someplace and her children are alone. Her husband goes to school in a nearby city and gets home every other weekend. He condones her behavior. Last week they had dinner with some relatives and left their children by themselves until nearly midnight. Their apartment is next to a gas station, across the street from a supermarket and a restaurant. Anything could happen. We have many mutual friends who know she leaves these youngsters alone but nobody will say anything. They insist it's "not their business." I thought I'd try you. I know she reads your column all the time because she quotes you a lot. Please tell her, Ann. Thank you.--- I Care

Dear I.C.: I care, too, and I hope that young mother comes to her senses before something terrible happens. The possibilities for disaster are endless.

It's strange how many people insure their homes, cars and jewelry. But their most valuable possessions--- their children--- they leave unguarded and trust to luck that some guardian angel will keep them safe and sound. When you see this column in the paper, please make sure SHE does.

Dear Ann Landers: I need help with our 15- year- old daughter. She is five- feet- four and weights 160 pounds--- at least. I am five- five and have weighed 125 pounds for the last ten years.

The girl has a beautiful face but she is enormous. I've offered her lovely clothes as an incentive to lose weight. I've bought her books on diet and nutrition, sent away for literature and reducing programs put out by weight- losing groups, offered her psychiatric therapy--- everything under the sun--- but she is completely uncooperative and will have nothing to do with any of it.

"D" is a quiet person, obedient, respectful, good in school, never seems to have any trouble with anyone, but she has few friends and is content to be alone with her books and records. The thing that baffles me is that I have never seen her eat bread, potatoes or desserts, and she doesn't snack all day the way some teen- agers do. I can't figure out why she is at least 30 pounds overweight.

The girl is in good health but not interested in sports. Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated.--- Dead End Mother

Dear Mother: The fact that you have never seen your daughter eat fattening foods does not mean she isn't eating them. There are closet eaters--- as sure as there are closet drinkers.

Your attempted bribes give me a clue. Fat daughters who have slim mothers invariably have a special set of emotional problems. The fact that you mention YOUR weight gives me another clue. I suspect there is some deep- seated hostility and competitiveness in her relationship with you.

Take "D" to a doctor for a complete physical check- up. Let HIM suggest a diet and counseling--- and you stay out of it. When you stop talking about her weight she'll probably start doing something about it.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope On Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Debra Pobst exchanges vows with Tom Holland

Miss Debra Ann Pobst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pobst, Route Four, and Thomas Martin Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Holland, 1409 Henry St., were united in marriage June 1 at 7 p.m. at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church. The Rev. Father Robert Schumacher officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

Prenuptial organ music was provided by Joel Allen, who also accompanied Lewis Watkins of Vanduser as he sang, "Moore" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The church was decorated with large baskets of fuji- mums, pink shades of carnations and white lilies. A large cherub stood on a pedestal directly in front of the altar holding a large bouquet of red roses. The couple were united in marriage in front of a large brass arch. Large pink bows accented the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of satin with an overlay of organza. A large rufle at the hem was accented with rows of lace. The bodice was of satin with an overlay of Chantilly lace. Sleeves were of organza with large lace cuffs and 10 pearl buttons on each cuff. Her chapel train was accented by lace which matched the lace in the gown. The headpiece was of the same lace and dotted with tiny seed pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, pink rosebuds and baby's breath with pink and white streamers.

As the bride was escorted down the aisle, she paused to present a single long- stemmed red rose to her mother and the groom's mother.

Mrs. Pam Edwards, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Patty Pobst, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Robert Lashmet were bridesmaids. They wore floor- length gowns of sheer pink floral organza over hot pink satin linings. The gowns were styled with high collars, and long puffed sleeves cuffed at the wrists. They wore white hats accented by various shades of pink flowers.

Kim Graviett served as flower girl. Her dress was identical to the other attendants. She carried a basket filled with various shades of pink rosebuds. Aaron Pobst, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer. He wore a white dinner jacket with burgundy pants.

Robert Lashmet was best man and Mike Pobst, brother of the bride, and George Holland Jr., brother of the groom, were groomsmen. Ushers were Chuck and David Pobst.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Pobst chose a floor- length dress of mint green and white polyester knit. She wore white accessories and a corsage of white and pink roses. Mrs. Holland, mother of the groom, wore a blue street- length dress of polyester knit. Her accessories were white, and she wore a corsage of white and pink roses, also.

A reception was held following the ceremony at Security Federal Savings and Loan. The bride's table was centered with a three- tiered wedding cake trimmed in multi-colors of pink and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The table was covered with a white linen cloth and caught up with pink bridal bells.

A candelabra flanked each side of the cake. Punch at each ends of the table, silver compotes holding nuts and mints and a floral arrangement of pink and white roses completed the table setting. Directly adjacent to the main table was a silver service. The gift table was covered with a white cloth and bouquet of red roses, and the guest book table was covered with a pink cloth, pink carnations and a wicker basket holding the rice bags.

Those serving were Mrs. Floyd Pobst, Mrs. Eugene Pobst, Mrs. James Pobst, Mrs. Gene Murphy, Mrs. James Payne and Miss Barbara Bright. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Melanie Shell.

After a short honeymoon the couple is living at 841 Mary St.

The new Mrs. Holland is employed by First National Bank, and Holland is employed by Hahs Machine Shop.

Miss Baker bride of D. Leonard

WINNEBAGO, Ill. — Miss Sheryl Lynn Baker of Sikeston, Mo., and David Allen Leonard were married June 7 at 7 p.m. in the Winnebago Presbyterian Church by the Rev. William Butler.

Miss Baker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker of 126 Autumn Drive, Sikeston, former residents of Winnebago. Leonard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Oakes of Winnebago.

The bride chose for her wedding a pastel-pink street-length dress.

Robin Baker of Sikeston served her sister as maid of honor, and Steven Leonard of Winnebago was his brogher's best man.

The new Mrs. Leonard is a graduate of Sikeston High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, Mo., for one year. Leonard is a graduate of Winnebago High School.

The couple lives in Janesville, Wis.

Attending were Mrs. W.B. Medlin and Debbie; Carolyn and Pamela Lancaster; and Gloria, Robin and Roger Parks.

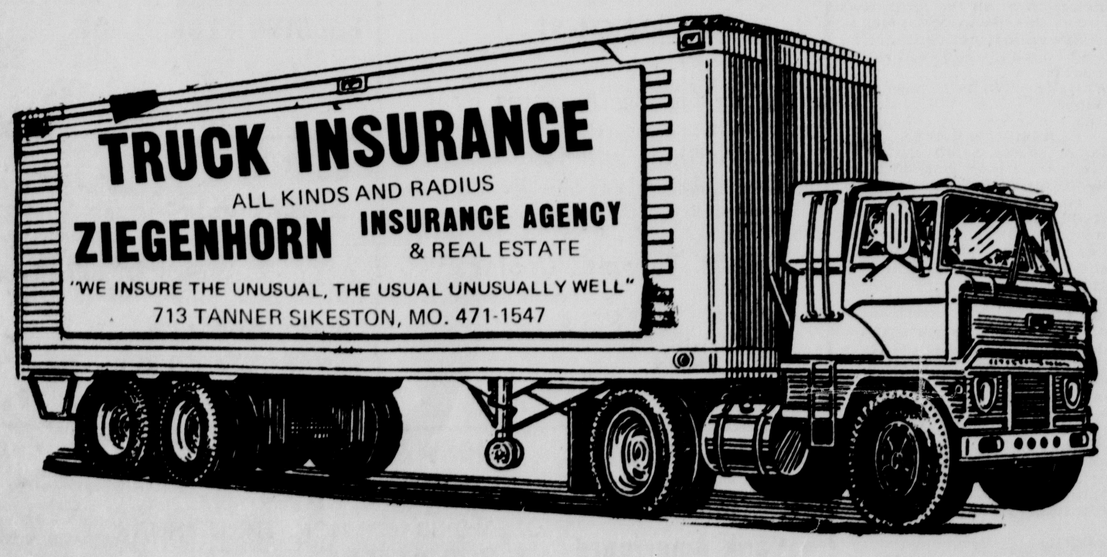

NOW HEAR THIS

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated 19 million persons in the United States, including about 3.5 million school-age children, have substantial hearing defects. At least half of these can be helped by hearing aids, but only about 2.5 persons wear hearing aids today, says James P. Ince, executive secretary of the Hearing Aid Industry Conference.

More than 90 per cent of all disabling hearing losses can be significantly improved by medicine, surgery or amplification through hearing aids, Ince estimates.

Such persons are urged to consult a medical doctor — preferably an otologist or otolaryngologist (ear specialist).

Education of young is objective of AEYC

By EDITH LUSK
Area Child & Family Development Specialist

PERRYVILLE — The district Association for the Education of Young Children includes members from the six Delta Area Counties of Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard, New Madrid, Mississippi and Scott; and from the seven Southeast Missouri Counties of Cape Girardeau, Perry, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Iron, Madison and Bollinger Counties.

At the recently held meeting in the Child Study Center of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, the president, Mrs. J. F.Blackiston, presided over the election of officers for the 1973-74 program year which begins in September.

Mrs. Mary E. Arbuckle, head teacher of Wardell Head Start was elected as president. Mrs. Marty Skaggs, an area Head Start supervisor at Flat River, was chosen first vice president, whose responsibilities also include the chairwomanship of the district's program committee.

Mrs. Lloyd Banks of Jackson was elected second vice president. This office also includes the chairwomanship of the district membership committee. The new secretary will be Mrs. Omagene Gillespie of the Head Start staff in Charleston. Miss Pat Grojean, instructor at the Southeast Missouri State University Child Study Center, was elected treasurer.

Members of this organization plan to hold major meetings for the new year in September, November, March and May at central locations in both Delta and Southeast areas. Program, legislature, membership, activities, nominating and hospitality committees have been named. The committees are represented by members from various counties in these two areas of the district. They also represent Head Start, University of Missouri Extension, Division of Welfare, day car centers, kindergartens, sursery schools, child study centers, family day care centers and others interested in the education of young children.

Membership in the Southeast and Delta AEYC district is open to any person interested in the education of the young child. Anyone wanting more information about the AEYC or wanting to join this district organization may contact any of the above- named officers, or write to Mrs. Lloyd Banks, membership chairman, Grandview Acres, Route three, Jackson, Mo. 63755.

Watch this newspaper for announcement about the first meeting of the new year which will be held in September.

Art show planned

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. George Simmons will present a showing of oil paintings by her art students at First Security State Bank from Sunday until Saturday.

A reception is planned Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. at the bank. Approximately 25 students from the Charleston-East Prairie area will participate in the show.

Miss Linville, Ron Calbert unite in June marriage

MALDEN— Miss Brenda Linville became the bride of Ronnie Calbert June 9 in a candlelight service at Mt. Gilead General Baptist Church in Malden. The Rev. Billy Hamlett officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Calbert of Lilbourn and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Linville of Campbell.

A white arch decorated with baby's breath, wedding bells and rainbow- colored ribbons, two spiral candelabras and one arched candelabra and two large baskets of blue, yellow and white gladioli formed the background for the wedding.

Candlelighters were Debbie and Linda Sandefer of Campbell. They wore matching princess street-length dresses of light blue.

Mrs. Bill McMillian was organist. Mrs. Diane Moody accompanied Sherry Provance as she sang, "Wedding Prayer" and "God Bless This Day".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silken organza gown trimmed with lace, lace flowers and seed pearls. The elbow- length veil of illusion was held in place by a row of flowers.

Miss Shirley Powers was matron of honor. She wore a maize yellow gown accented with white lace, a matching yellow veil and carried an arrangement of multi-colored flowers with pink, blue and yellow and green ribbon streamers.

Bridesmaids were Debby Boyle of Malden and Rita Johnson of Lilbourn, sister of the groom. Miss Boyle's dress was green and Miss Johnson's was pink. They were styled like that worn by the matron of honor.

Miss Melissa Jan Linville, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a light blue gown matching the other attendants and carried a white basket of multi-colored flowers.

The bride's gown and those worn by the attendants were designed and made by the bride, her sister, Mrs. Dewight Griffin, and the bride's mother.

Best man was Raymond Tindle of Lilbourn. Groomsmen were Ricky Calbert of Lilbourn, brother of the groom, and Lester Johnson of Lilbourn, brother- in- law of the groom. Ringbearer was Rickly Johnson of Batesville, Miss., cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Cathy Curtner was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Jane Calbert of Lilbourn, sister- in- law of the groom; Mrs. Alice Linville, sister- in- law of the bride; and Mrs. Bobbie Johnson of Batesville, Miss., cousin of the groom, assisted with the reception.

Out- of- town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Lott, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Calbert and Ruthie and Travela Austin of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Bendonna Biggs of Tiptonville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Johnson of Batesville, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. James Walker of Steele; Mr. and Mrs. Roy McClellon of Nebraska; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lunbeck of Gideon; Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Kennett; Mrs. Pat Twitty of Lilbourn; and Tamera Myers of Sikeston.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Calbert will make their home in Malden.

Miss Hendrickson weds David Cain

ST. LOUIS— Miss Virginia Ann Hendrickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Hendrickson of Ferguson, recently became the bride of David E. Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Cain, of Bertrand, at First Church of God in St. Louis.

A reception and buffet followed.

Miss Valeria Hendrickson of Ferguson was the maid of honor, and Jack Heckert of Sikeston was the best man.

Groomsmen were John Brewer of Sikeston, Tony Cain of Bertrand and Steve Williams of St. Louis. Bridesmaids were Linda Hogan, Patsy Francis and Debbie Ellis of St. Louis.

The couple will live in Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. David E. Cain

Tornado Report

In the 11-year period from 1960 through 1970, 7,428 unpredictable tornadoes were reported in the United States. They killed more than a thousand people and might have killed many more except for an efficient warning system.

CASALS AGAIN AT MARLBORO

MARLBORO, Vt. (AP) — The Marlboro Music Festival will open its 23rd season on July 7. Pablo Casals, 96-year-old cellist and conductor, will be in residence for the 13th summer since 1960.

Chamber orchestra and chamber music concerts will be on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, plus three on Fridays.

Artists come from all over the United States and many foreign countries. They explore new repertoire and exchange ideas. They rehearse more than 100 different works each week and programs are made up only a day or two before each performance.

Infants need stimulation to reach growth capacity

By SHAREN K. HUNT
University of Missouri Extension

The need for stimulation during infancy and early years has been researched often. The question now is, "Does lack of it limit intellectual growth permanently or just slow it down for a while?"

Dr. Jerome Kagan, Harvard University, believes a young child's capacity to learn isn't regidly set by early experience. He feels they can and will catch up if sociey doesn't stomp our their self-confidence during the interim. This view came about after he compared the intellectual growth of American middle class and poor Guatemalan children.

According to custom, Indian babies are left alone, with nobody to talk or play with them , for the first year. By the time they're 1½ years, they're about 4 months retarded, according to American middle class toddlers of the same age.

He found by the time they're 11, their intelligence is par with American standards. This bounce back and catch up ability is lacking in American children, Kagan feels, because of society's stress on the "sacred tasks" of learning to read and write at certain ages.

He feels American educators are giving up on "slow learners" too soon. If each were allowed to develop at their own speed and taught subjects of interest, they'd catch up. "He suggests art, public speaking, or music instead of always traditional 3 R's.

An environment where a child's self-esteem is safeguard and normal intellectual development expected, (although maybe not immediately) provides the setting for a "catch up". This hopeful conclusion though, isn't believed by all child development specialists.

In a later issue of the same journal, Burton White said 3 to 5 - year-olds who develop poorly don't pull themselves out of it. "Someday we'll learn how to turn children around, but we don't know how now." Long range effects of stimulation have been studied by psychologist Kangas. He says, "just living" may produce a rise in one's IQ scores over the years, but stimulation increases the gain.

He had tested a group of men and women as preschoolers, then again 10 and 15 years later. The years between childhood and early middle age resulted in rise of approximately 20 points. Among the men, the highest gains were made by those who had made highest score as boys.

For the women studied, those who had highest IQ scores as girls showed smallest gains as grown-ups.

All the men had stimulating occupations, while most women were homemakers or worked at dull and unchallenging jobs. This causes Kangas to wonder if routne repetitive chores that are so often a women's lot both at home and on the job, actually retards intellectual development. The more stimulating an individual's life, the higher his or her IQ gains is likely to be, regardless of age.

Butler, Cloud star

CHAFFEE — Sikeston's 13- year old Jr. Babe Ruth all-stars won a double header Thursday night to advance to the finals of the district tournament.

Pitching stood out for Sikeston as Hal Butler hurled a one-hitter in gaining a 12-5 victory over Tri-County in the opener. Roger Cloud fashioned a three hitter in recording a 9-7 victory over East Prairie in the nighcap to win the losers bracket and advance to tonight's finals against undefeated Chaffee.

Sikeston opened up a 7-0 lead against Tri- County, taking advantage of walks and some timely hitting to back Butler's one-hit performance.

East Prairie held a 3-1 lead going into the fourth inning of the second game, before their pitching gave out. Sikeston pushed eight runs across the plate, gaining only three hits during the big frame.

Don Francis rallied in the top of the seventh, scoring four runs, but falling two runs short of a tie and three of the lead.

Chaffee meets Sikeston at 7 tonight. A win by the host would send them to the state tournament at Ft. Leonardwood early next month. A win by Sikeston would force the two into a playoff game at 9 p.m.

MACON, Ga. (AP) — The new Macon franchise in the Southern Hockey League will be called the Whoopees.

Atlanta businessman Gerald Pinkerton said Thursday his team will play a 70-game schedule and will wear red, white and blue uniforms.

"When the name 'Macon Whoopees' was first proposed, we thought it was terrific," he said. "But we wanted to see how the people in Macon would accept it. They obviously have and now we hope we can give something back to the community."

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles announced today that Karl Wallenda will walk across a cable connecting two light standards at Memorial Stadium next Friday night.

Wallenda, the 68-year-old patriarch of the "Flying Wallendas," is scheduled to make the walk about 100 feet above the ground between games of a twi-night doubleheader between the Orioles and the Oakland Athletics.

Blankenship wins

Security National downed Leible Implement 6- 3 while the Elks had to forfeit to Optimist in Thursday night play of the Sr. Babe Ruth League.

Leible Implement slipped across the plate for a single run during the first and added another in the third, while holding Security National scoreless. It was not until the fourth inning that Security National scored, bringing across five runs to take the lead. Leible could not come back although they did add one run to their score. The only extra base hit of the game came from Leible's bench as Dyer hit a double. Blankenship picked up the win while Shatzley had the loss.

Smith leads romp

Thursday night's Musial League action saw Nunnelee, behind the pitching and hitting of Smith, take an 18-4 runaway over Potlatch while Bank of Sikeston scored a narrow 9-8 win.

Smith was the star of the game with his strong playing. He was four-for-four at bat and three of those hits were doubles. Claiming the win was also added to his credit. Though Nunnelee held only a slim edge of 3-1 during the first inning, the lead was widened as Nunnelee brought around three additional runs in the second and Potlatch failed to stay with them. Either team could not score in the following inning but Nunnelee came on strong for the final inning as they made 12 trips around the bases. Jackson, Buchanon, and Carnell also added doubles to that of Smith's. Bell and Branson hit doubles for Potlatch. Bell pitched the loss for Potlatch.

Both teams struggled to capture the lead but the score remained tied at 2-all until the third. Harts went into the lead but Bank of Sikeston came back strong and broke through for six big runs to capture the lead. Harts brought across two runs but could not produce any more and had to take the loss. Perry, the winning pitcher, along with Daniels had the extra base hits for Bank of Sikeston with doubles. Huff and Scott slapped doubles for Harts.

Security pitching shines

Jaycees captured a 15-10 win over A&B and Security National Bank won still another behind the pitching of Jeff Young when they took a 6-3 decision from Kiwanis in Thursday night's play in the National Little League.

A&B picked up a single run in the first inning to stay with the Jaycees by one, but could not maintain a steady bat and went scoreless for the next three innings. The fifth inning proved to be big ones for both teams as they both came around seven times, but Jaycees still held their lead through their early scoring. A&B went on to score two more as did Jaycees but the game was all Jaycees. Burgess pitched the win.

Security National remains at the top of their league with strong pitching and fielding. Young held the Kiwanis scoreless until the third when they finally were able to produce runs and brought across three. Security National maintained the lead, however, having picked up four runs prior to the third. Holding on to the slim edge, Security National added two insurance runs in the final inning to capture the win. Echols had the only extra base hit of the game with a triple for Kiwanis.

Bridger protests

Despite a protest by Bridger, Fabick's Self pitched a 15-0 shutout to take the win while Ryan defeated Caproco 10-6 in the American Little League Thursday night.

Fabick took command of the game during the first inning as they blasted 10 runs across the plate to take an early advantage. Bridger could not make their hits count, gaining only three against the strong pitching, which kept them scoreless. Fabick added one and three runs in the third and fourth respectively but suffered no threats from Bridger. McDowell, along with Self, had doubles for Fabick. White had the only double for Bridger. McCoy was the losing pitcher.

Ryan had to come from behind to catch Caproco and take the lead. At the bottom of the second, Caproco led 6-3 but Ryan was not out of it as of yet. Caproco could not hold Ryan and they broke through for five runs. Caproco could not come back and had to suffer the loss. Polley, Williams, and Wood provided the hitting power for Ryan as all three had doubles. Warfield and Fraser had doubles for Caproco. Doster was the winning and Woodard the losing pitcher.

CHICAGO — Arnold Palmer and Bruce Crampton fashioned five-under-par 66s to share the first round lead in the $175,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

CLEMSON, S. C. (AP) — Ed Emory, who guided Brevard, N. C., High School to a 35-7 record during the past four seasons, has joined the Clemson coaching staff, head football Coach Parker announced Thursday.

Emory, a native of Lancaster, S.C., will coordinate the junior varsity program for the Tigers.

Emory was a standout lineman at East Caroline. He was an assistant at Wake Forest in 1967 before moving to Brevard the following year.

LIGHTER BAT HELPS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Shortstop Dave Concepcion of the Cincinnati Reds is sold on light bats. After switching this spring — at the suggestion of coach Ted Kluszewski — from a 34-ounce to a 31-ounce bat, Concepcion paced the Reds in hitting after the first 17 games.

If you're planning a driving vacation this summer, the gasoline shortage has to figure in your plans.

Different areas of the country will experience different degrees of shortage this summer. Just as they are now. From mild to fairly severe.

So, depending on where you are at any given time on your vacation, you won't know what the situation is up the road. Some stations may have all the gasoline you can take on. Others may be limiting the number of gallons they will sell to each motorist. And still others may be out completely.

Some stations may close early to stretch their supply—or not open at all on some days. Others will be running at their normal hours.

We're producing more gasoline than ever before but there's just not enough to go around. So we are allocating our supply to our dealers on a monthly basis as fairly as we know how. We will be delivering gasoline to our dealers all summer long but to stretch their supply, they may find that some of the above measures are necessary.

But all this doesn't mean the situation is so unpredictable that you should give up your trip. We do urge you to exercise a little consideration when you choose a vacation spot though. And a little care in getting there.

Here are some tips we suggest:

Fill your tank in the morning. That's when stations are most likely to have gasoline. Some stations will sell only so many gallons per day, and then close early.

Also try to be off the road early. You don't want to be on the road late at night if the stations in that area have shortened their hours.

Think about keeping your tank at least one-quarter full. That way, you'll have a reserve in case you come across a station that can't supply you.

There are also many things you can do to conserve gasoline along the way, and get more miles to the gallon.

Make sure your car is in tune before you leave. A tuned car will get about 10% better gas mileage than one that is out of tune.

High-speed driving is hard on mileage, so slow down. If you drive 50 mph instead of 60 mph, you can save about one gallon in ten.

Try to maintain a steady speed. You'll get better mileage than if you constantly speed up and slow down. For example, passing a line of cars on a two-lane highway may get you there a little sooner, but the extra acceleration means your car is going to gulp a lot more gasoline.

If you tow a boat or trailer, uphill climbs cut into your gas mileage heavily. Build up your speed before you reach the hill, so your engine doesn't have to work as hard on the way up.

Use your air conditioner sparingly. When it's running, you get less mileage per gallon.

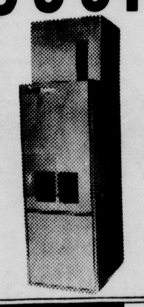

All of us at Standard Oil hope these tips will be helpful to you this summer. And that your vacation is an enjoyable one.

SLOW DOWN
Save gasoline.

Williams resigns First Baptist post

Joe Williams, minister of music and education at First Baptist Church for four years, announced his resignation this week to accept a similar position at Lochwood Baptist Church in Denver, Colo. His resignation is to be effective Aug. 15.

Since coming to Sikeston in 1969, Williams has not only directed the First Baptist choir and a graded youth music program, but also has been active in the Century Men, a 100- voice arm of the Southern Baptist Convention radio and television commission, and the Music Men of Missouri, a branch of the Missouri Baptist Music Director Association which he has served as president.

Joe Williams

A graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee, Okla., where he was a member of the Bison Glee Club, and Southwestern Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., Williams has also served churches in Texas and Oklahoma and came to Sikeston from First Baptist Church in Lebanon, Mo.

He and his wife Flo have three daughters, Pam, Missy and Kathleen.

Witnesses to attend convention July 11-15

Russell Knauer, presiding minister of the Sikeston congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said nearly 50 local members will attend one of a series of international conventions scheduled July 11-15 at Royals Stadium in Kansas City by The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York.

Other meetings in the United States are planned at Tiger Stadium in Detroit, White Sox Park in Chicago, Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, Oakland - Alameda Stadium in Oakland, Calif., Astrodome in Houston, Three Rivers Stadium in Philadelphia and Yankee Stadium in New York.

Knauer said six Spanish-language conventions are also scheduled in the U. S. All meetings are set for June and July.

Internationally, five conventions have been arranged for Canada, 12 in Europe, five in Asia, 17 in South and Central America, three in the South Pacific and seven in Africa during 1973.

The theme of the conventions worldwide is "Divine Victory" and will stress the Witnesses' belief in the certainty of divine intervention in human affairs in order for man's problems to reach an ultimate and permanet solution.

Impact Team to sing

The Impact Team, made up of senior high school teen-agers from across the Missouri District of the Church of the Nazarene will sing at a Southeast Zone rally to be held 7 p.m. Saturday in the new First Church of the Nazarene facilities on Highway 61 North.

The Missouri District is made up of cities and towns in the eastern half of the state. The Southeast zone includes Anniston, Cape Girardeau, Charleston, Matthews, Morehouse, Sikeston Eastside and Sikeston First churches.

The Nazarene Young People's Society zone chairman is the Rev. C. Conrad Carrigan, pastor of the Sikeston Eastside church.

Brush with death alters youth's life

By JEANNE MAYNARD

NEW MADRID — "I didn't quit doin' drugs because I got shot; I quit doin' drugs because I met Jesus Christ." These inspirational words from Randy Krebs, 22-year-old New Madrid youth who miraculously recovered from a critical gunshot wound in his left ear, explain his touching message, "From Tragedy to Triumph."

Krebs was injured in a gangster-style shooting last Nov. 19 and his companion, Carl David Blankenship, 24, of New Madrid was murdered. Robert C. Howell, a 20-year-old from Chicago, to whom three pounds of marijuana was to be sold on the night of the shootings, was convicted on Jan. 30 of slaying Blankenship and received a life sentence.

According to Krebs' courtroom testimony he talked with Howell on the night of Nov. 17 telling him he could get three pounds of marijuana at $150 per pound.

Krebs testified that he was with Blankenship the following night and that about 11 p.m. the two drove to the Brotherhood Club in New Madrid. He said he went into the club and gave Howell a "joint" (marijuana cigarette). The two discussed where they would meet and decided on the home of Howell's stepgrandmother, where Howell was staying.

Krebs testified that after leaving the club, neither he nor Blankenship could remember which house Howell was staying in, so they drove Blankenship's car to the IGA Store parking lot where they waited about 15 minutes for Howell to appear.

Howell got into the backseat and the three drove to where the marijuana was hidden.

After Krebs handed Howell the marijuana, he said they drove about 200 yards down the levee road. "We told him we would give him a better price and sell it to him for $300 instead of the original $450." Krebs testified.

Shortly after that, as he turned his head toward Blankenship, Krebs was shot in the left ear. "I didn't hear the other shot, and when I came to later, I heard movement in the car and lay still." Krebs said.

Continuing, Krebs said he regained conciousness later and attempted to get out of the car, but could not, as he seemed to be paralyzed on the right side. He did not remember being taken by ambulance to a Sikeston hospital or being taken to Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

"That night I was at the point where I knew that I didn't have anything or anyone else to turn to except God." Krebs commented in a personal interview last week. "I went to God in a small prayer, realizing that I couldn't help mayself, and that I had no control over what could happen."

Krebs admitted that the change in his life didn't occur overnight. "I spent months in heartache, wrestling with a lot of things in my life." Like Jonah in the Old Testament book of that name, Krebs says he tried to run away from God. "I knew that God was real, but I just didn't know if I could live the kind of life that God wanted me to."

The whale that swallowed Krebs was the first courtroom trial that he had ever experienced. "At the time of the trial." he said, "I hadn't let Christ be No. 1 in my life,and I was trying to carry all of the burden, all the guilt, all the anger and hatred upon myself."

Shaking his head, Krebs recalled, "It was almost unbearable for awhile. I thought I was close to the point of a nervous breakdown, not being able to eat or sleep. I had been living one night over and over a thousand times, asking myself questions for which there was no answer.

After the first trail, in which Howell was convicted of killing Blankenship, Krebs was discouraged by the fact that many of his friends were still involved in the drug scene. "It was like a guy had died and it didn't mean anything to anybody. I expected everybody else to change because of what had happened to me. But that's not living up to reality; it just doesn't happen that way." he explained.

A letter of encouragement came from a girl who had been using drugs. She explained that Kreb's experiences had deeply affected her life. "I realized that if it meant anything to just one person, it was important," he said.

"Shortly after receiving the letter, I talked with a Baptist pastor in St. Louis. I decided then to let the Lord have His way in my life; to do what He wanted to with me," he continued.

"By the time of the second trial," Krebs said, "I was trusting in the Lord." Krebs was on the stand for one and one-half hours. Drawing a breath, he said, "That's a long time to have someone shooting questions at you." It was the strength of God, Krebbs explained, that helped him withstand the pressures while on the stand.

The second trial ended with Howell receiving a 10-year sentence for felonious assault with intent ot kill in the shooting of Krebs.

Now fully recovered, Randy lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Krebs of New Madird and has been speaking to groups of young people throughout the Southeast Missouri area. In his message, he relates his personal testimony and tells of the change God has made in his life.

Before becoming involved with drugs, Krebs was quite athletic minded, and thought playing basketball was one of the most important things in life. Of his two years of college at The School of the Ozarks in Point Lookout, he commented," I didn't want to face the fact that I just wasn't good enough (to play college basketball)."

Krebbs explained that when that important thing was taken away from his life, it seemed to destroy something inside him. At this point, he first began to experiment with drugs because "I was just curious."

As the experiment grew into a habit, Randy found himself getting "hooked". He recalled "I could forget about everything and just get zonked on dope, and worry about everything when I came down."

Now, the "new" Randy explained, "I don't have any desire to do any drugs. Drugs is death on the installment plan. If someone is doing drugs, I feel he is just asking for a tragedy in his life. Just like it happened to me, things can start so innocently and become so serious."

Krebs says his trials are by no means over, explaining, "I've probably received a lot of criticism and ridicule, and nobody likes to be laughed at or put down. But whenever I'm feeling low, I try to consider it as a cross I must bear, and when I stop and think about it, it's nothing compared to what Jesus has done for me. If you believe in what you're doing, it doesn't matter what people say."

Despite the hardships, Krebs continues to spread the gospel.

"I'm not ashamed of what I'm doing, he declared. "God isn't going to let anything happen to me that I can't handle. "I don't do this for people to say nice things about me. "I'm doing it for Jesus Christ. Each of us has our own personal ministry, and He wants me to share what He has done for me with other people."

Krebs believes that his mission is to be directed especially to young people. "I fell that I know what young people are going through today because I've been there," he said.

As a young boy, he attended the New Madrid Baptist Church regularly. On looking back, he says his backsliding began because he didn't seek God every day, so he couldn't grow and mature as a Christian. "God doesn't quit," he added. "I fell away from God."

Expressing his concern, Krebs commented,"I know that young people today are hungry; they are searching for some answer. To me, drugs is a cop-out."

When asked how he manages to keep his faith strong in the midst of so many tribulations, Randy replied, "God allowed this to happen to me. Maybe this was the only way he could get my attention, and he has my attention now.

"To keep our communication open, I keep three important things in mind. First, I talk to the Lord just as I would talk to a person in this room. Second, I study his word." As he lifted a Bible from the end table, he added, "This is where my strength lies; the Bible is sharper than any two-edged sword. And, finally, I have fellowship with other Christians."

When asked about his future plans, Krebs replied, "Each day when I get up, I try to turn the day over to the Lord. As for the future, I may go back to college, but I intend to do whatever the Lord has planned for me."

In conclusion, Krebs expressed his views about the "Jesus Movement". "I am not a Jesus Freak," he said, "and if anybody asked me just what I am; I would answer, 'I'm a Christian.' They have the right idea though, he commented as he raised his middle and fore fingers to form a "peace" sign, "in searching for peace; but peace is an individual thing."

With only his forefinger raised in the air, the spirit-filled young man concluded, "The only way to find real and lasting peace is this, one way, Jesus Christ."

From drugs to Bible

The "new" Randy Krebs speaks openly about the miracle of his life and the strength of his soul with the Bible in his hand of the changes he has experienced since turing to God after a close brush with death when shot in the left ear ear last fall while discussing the sale of three pounds of marijuana.

Doss joins staff of Cape church

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Elwood Doss Jr. has joined the staff of First Baptist Church as minister of music and youth activities. He was formerly employed by the Poplar Bluff School District as director of vocal music at the junior high level. He had taught high school level instrumental and vocal music at Parma before going to Poplar Bluff.

Doss graduated in 1970 from University of Tennessee at Martin with a bachelor of music education degree with a major in voice. He will receive a master of music education degree from Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau in August.

Doss is well known as soloist in Southeast Missouri, having sung at the annual Southeast Missouri District Teacher's Association meetings in 1972 and in operatic presentations at Southeast Missouri State. He is also much in demand as a revival singer. This past school year he served as a guest clinician on junior high vocal music at the music division meeting of the annual district teachers' meeting. He is to direct the music at the World Missions Conference at Camp Windemere near Roach, Mo., sponsored by the Missouri Baptist Convention in July.

Doss , the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Doss Sr. of Union City, Tenn., Route Four, is married to the former Carolyn Sims of Mason Hall, Tenn. They, with their nine-month old son Chuckie, will make their home at 1715 Georgia in Cape Girardeau.

THE BIBLE

89. The Attack on Jericho

The inhabitants of Jericho kept the gates of the city tightly shut. No one was allowed to come in or go out. But the Lord spoke to Joshua, telling him that the city would soon belong to the Israelites.

The Lord then told Joshua how to conquer the city: "And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days. And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of ram's horns: and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets. And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout: and the wall of the city shall fall down flat, and the people shall ascend up, every man straight before him." (Joshua 6:3-5)

Joshua followed the commandments of the Lord, and for six days the people marched silently around the city of Jericho, returning to their camp each day.

Ozark balloting begins

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Members of the striking Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association began balloting Thursday night on a contract with Ozark Air Lines, which the union's negotiators have not recommended be rejected.

Ozark's operations have been halted for 71 days since the April 19th walkout by the 560-member mechanics union which conducted a seven-day strike against the midwest air carrier in April of 1971.

Union members in St. Louis, Chicago and at outstations were balloting on a tentative agreement reached in negotiations Tuesday night in Washington. Terms of the new pact were not announced pending the results of the vote.

The AMFA's walkout, which halted Ozark's operations in 62 cities and 15 states, was originally over wages, but terms of a back-to-work agreement were held up over another issue involving the use of closed-circuit television in mechanics' work areas.

"The results of the voting will be announced Friday night or early Saturday morning depending on how close the St. Louis-Chicago vote is," Samuel Smith, AMFA Local 24 president, said.

"If the vote is too close, to where the outstations could change the outcome, we'll remain mute until the outstation voting is tabulated. It could be 14 days before we could divulge that information," Smith said.

He would not speculate on the outcome of the balloting.

"It (the agreement) is an equitable settlement, but if the members do decide they're not satisfied, we will go back to the (negotiating) table," the union leader said.

An earlier tentative agreement was rejected by the mechanics on May 10.

Mine talks progressing

BONNE TERRE, Mo. (AP) — Some progress was reported Thursday in talks aimed at ending a 29-day-old lead mine strike and further negotiations were scheduled today.

"We got pretty close. We've made some progress," Jewell Henson, district representative of the United Steelworkers Union said after a day of talks with officials of the Cominco -American lead mine and a federal mediator.

Henson said there was progress on economic issues other than wages.

Both sides said earlier that economic matters were the main issue in the strike, which shut down the mining operation in the Missouri Lead Belt on May 31.

Two other area lead mines were shut down earlier this year by USW strikes for varying periods.

Danforth files ouster suit against prosecutor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Marvin L. Smith, Texas County prosecutor and a law partner of Congressman Richard Ichord, is the target of an ouster suit filed Thursday with the state supreme court by Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

Smith, a Democrat elected last fall without opposition, is accused of soliciting and accepting payoffs and committing other acts of misconduct.

Smith, 27, reached in the offices of Ichord, Smith and Lay, would not comment today about the suit. He acknowledged he is the law partner of Ichord and Hubert Lay, a member of the state park board.

The suit asks that Smith be fined $10,000 and outsed from office.

The complaint says he "received compensation and other consideration to neglect his official duty."

The prosecutor is charged with 15 violations, several involving accepting money from persons who were charged with drunken driving or speeding violations.

Smith is charged with taking a check for $150 from Andy Vollmar on April 24. Vollmar had received a summons from a conservation agent for not checking a turkey, but was never prosecuted, the suit said.

He was accused of dropping a charge of petty stealing and failure to lodge careless driving charges against Caroline S. Collins, who he had previously represented in a divorce case.

Another allegation said Smith amended a charge of driving while intoxicated against Albert Rex Pearcy, to make it careless and imprudent driving while drinking. Pearcy, who Smith was said to have also represented in a divorce case, was given a $100 fine and a suspended jail sentence.

Deadline extended

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- U.S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison today announced that the Small Business Administration has extended the deadline for those wishing to make disaster loan application to July 31. Burlison said the extension will also apply to applicants who already have filed for a SBA disaster loan.

The 10th District counties which were included in the Presidential disaster declaration of April 24 and are eligible for SBA assistance are as follows: Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Jefferson, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Reynolds, Perry, Ste. Genevieve, Scott, Stoddard, and Wayne.

SPRINGBOKS TO BE SHOT

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — About 10,000 springboks, the antelope which is South Africa's animal symbol, are to be shot on farms in this country for export to Europe this year.

Commission has priority list

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Clean Water Commission has prepared a priority list for federal grants, and representatives of small communities say grant criteria may leave them high and dry.

Over 100 communities and sewer districts have been rated in competition for $82 million in federal money for water pollution control projects.

Approval of grants is up to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which approved only $1.9 million last year.

Cities or sewer districts were assigned points based on five criteria:

1. Treatment facilities on streams or water supplies of limited water quality.

2. Facilities on streams of limited amounts of effluence.

3. Sewage collection systems needed to supplement treatment facilities in existence.

4. Type of pollution problem and proximity to lakes or streams.

5. Population.

Representatives of small communities such as Oregon, California and Pilot Grove said at a hearing Thursday they are ready to begin work on collection systems but they need federal matching funds and were afraid top priority would be given to larger cities constructing treatment facilities.

Jack K. Smith, executive secretary of the Clean Water Commission, said that in some cases, collection systems will be classified along with a total treatment system in the grant applications.

Glenn Waller, representing Oregon, a community of 900, said small towns cause as much pollution per person as do many cities, and population should not be a determining factor.

Several witnesses from small towns needing money for pipelines said they were afraid there would not be any money left after it is granted to those communities needing treatment facilities. In another matter, Smith said the commission has tabled a regulation saying a septic tank could not be placed on any development smaller than one acre.

The rule met resistance from subdividers in lake areas.

Reps. Flavel J. Butts, R-Camdenton, and Morris G. Westfall, R-Half Way, said retirees couldn't be attracted to lakeside developments if their homesties had to be at least one acre in size.

Smith said the regulation had been aimed at heavily populated developments on 3-to-5 acres in size.

Raymond Beck, director of public works for Columbia, told the commission he thought Columbia should have been given a 30-point rating instead of 26.

In the past, the priority for federal money was based on how quickly a community finished its engineering plans and obtained local financing.

At the top of the federal funds priority list with 30 points was Springfield. At 29 points was Perryville. SpringfieldJames River and SpringfieldAirport Trunk were given 28 points.

Receiving 27 poings were Lebanon, Anderson, Licking, Mountain Grove, Campbell, Farmington, Springfield-Little Sac River, Springfield-Wilson Creek, and Richland.

At 26 points were Kirksville, Moberly, Columbia, Belton and Warrensburg.

Listed at 25 points were Freeburg, Monett, Hillsboro, Wentzville, Osceola, Mount Vernon, Crystal City, Branson, Vienna, Carrollton, Southwest City, Pilot Grove, Bethany, Lower Big River Sewer District, Lake Adelle Sewer District, Poplar Bluff, Delta and Flat River.

Rated at 24 points—Lee's Summit, Calhoun.

Rated at 23 points—Holcomb, Weatherby Lake, Grandview, Princeton, Dearborn, Bowling Green, Hughesville, Risco, Nevada, California, Concordia, Ellisville, Lawson, St. Joseph—102 Drainage District, Platte County Sewer District No. 3, Palmyra, Salem, Glaize Creek Sewer District, Clinton, Greenwood, Browning, Wardell Treatment.

At 22 points—Clarkton, Kansas City, Fulton, Independence, Clark, Mercer, Wyatt, Springfield-Fulbright and Bloomsdale.

At 21 points—Pleasant Valley, Odessa, Princeton, Peculiar, Troy, Montgomery City, Pevely, Cole Camp, New Bloomfield, Grain Valley, Richland-Collection System.

At 20 points—St. Joseph, Metroplitan St. Louis Sewer District, Kansas City-West Side Design, Kansas City—Big Blue design, Metroplitan St. Louis District—Bonfils, Lemay and Bissell, Cape Girardeau.

At 19 points—Kingsville, Charleston, Wardell Collection.

At 18 points—St. Charles, Little Blue Valley Sewer District.

At 17 points—Rock Port, Robertson.

Theatre group gives good performance , choice of material only hinderance

By TIM LUDWIG

Pajama Tops is a farce set in a small town in France. Actors in the Sikeston Little Theatre have chosen a tough one this time. The actors and theater staff have, as their custom, done a fine job in every respect. The act is fine, the set and planning are all well done, the lighting and make-up carefully applied; but somebody came up short on the choice of plays.

It must have been inevitable that in a season which included memorable plays and performances such as "Fantastics" and "Fiddler on the Roof," that something would go wrong. It has and it hasn't. A stated before, what the theater troupe could have done, they have; and they have done it well. It's what they should have avoided that brings them problems. They should have picked a better vehicle for themselves.

Basically, the plot runs like this: George (Jim Crenshaw) has a mistress in another small town who gets invited to visit George and his wife by George's wife, Yvonne, (Annette York) who thinks that Babette's (the mistress) husband (non-existant) is George's business partner in a bag (that's right-- bag) business. Well, Babette doesn't know that George is married, so she makes the trip. In the meantime, Leonard (George's old friend played by Jim Wenneker) shows up uninvited and announces he is planning to stay at the villa. This happens without Yvonne meeting Leonard so there is another character to thicken (muddle) the plot.

About this time, Babette shows up when Leonard is away and George has to tell her that he is married and try to figure out a way to salvage the situation. Somewhere in all this mess, is a maid named Claudine (Jo Ellen Felkner), who is determined to become a skilled "courtisan" and practices her flirtations on every man in sight. Also lost in the confused crowd is a character named Jacques) David Ziegenhorn), who becomes the butler in George's household, and, so it turns out, is the real husband of Babette (remember Babette?) whom no one thought had a husband.

The impression is made somewhere in the first act, that one is now watching a sporting contest, since all the players choose up partners for the big deception. George stays with wife Yvonne. Babette picks Leonard to be her "husband" while the deception is played on Yvonne and Babette's real husband and Claudine sort of get thrown together. Out of all this madness comes the final character, the inspector of police (Ron Peek) who tries to turn the whole situation into a scandal to enhance the end of his career.

Everything does resolve itself at the end of the play, but the in-between period presents a crazy, mixed up bunch of scenes. Jim Wenneker, director of Pajama Tops, has done a very good job in working the actors through the less- than - great script. They all do a very enjoyable job and make the show as good as it can be.

Pajama Tops isn't a bad show, it's just less than the Sikeston Little Theatre has a right to expect from itself. The many scenes do have a good bit of comedy in them that will make for a pleasant show for those of you who will see it. You may have a little difficulty keeping up with the antics of the principal characters as they go through their multiple affairs, but if you can, you should have an enjoyable, if light, evening.

The Sikeston Little Theatre isn't ending with the kind of play we might have hoped for after "Fantastic" and "Fiddler," but here's hoping that next year they will find all of their plays more worthy of what they can do.

What's the law?

The case of the luckless fisherman

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Every time fisherman Albert went on a vacation, so did the fish. Consequently, to change his luck he ventured to another state where he hoped the angling would be better. And as fate would have it, his luck did change. It got worse.

Not only didn't he catch any fish, he didn't even get near the water. While he was digging for worms i n the back of his motel, he was collared by the local gendarmes and was arrested for violating a local law that prohibited anyone from digging for worms without a license.

"I've heard of sheltering little girls," protested Albert in court, "but not little worms. Certainly a law prohibiting the digging of worms can't be legal. If it was, every bird in the area would have to be areested. The lockup would look more like a bird cage than a jail."

"They're our worms," retorted the prosecuting attorney, "and we've got a right to protect them for our local residents. While we may not have too much to be proud of in this area, what we are proud of is our succulent worms."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict luckless Albert of digging for worms without a license?

this is how the judge rules: YES! The judge held that it is not unreasonable for the people of a town to have a prior right to their succulent worms ahead of outsiders. Consequently, concluded the judge, the local ordinance was perfectly valid and Albert was quilty of violating it. (Based on a 1952 Maine Supreme Judicial Court Decision)

Bond set at $2,000 for Cecil on no funds charge

BLOOMFIELD -- Fourteen cases were heard by Judge Koss Blomeyer in Magistrate Court Thursday.

Preliminary hearing was set for July 5 for Gary Cecil, charged with no funds check. Bond was set at $2,000.

T.J. Mason pleaded not guilty to a charge of speeding. Trial was set for July 5.

Larry J. Harris of Puxico and Eugene Larry Isaac pleaded guilty to charges of possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, and were fined $50 each.

Eight others paid fines for various charges:

Victor S. Roe of Fisk, charged with careless and imprudent driving, $10 Glendall Ray Watkins of Bernie, improper muffler, $5 and expired vechicle license, $5; Charles M. Franklin of Dudley, careless and imprudent driving and causing and accident, $15. Clyde E. Handley of Bernie, no operators license, $10 and unauthorized plates $5; Earl S. Smith of Ft. Smith, Ark.. entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of careless and imprudent driving and was fines $19.

Burl Calvin Stevenson, overlength on trailer, entered a written plea of guilty and was fined $10; Earl Lee Miller, no operators license, $5; and Charles Everett Tully, careless and imprudent driving $15.

Jacksons fined

CHARLESTON -- Appearing this morning in City Court were Jimmy Jackson , 43, of Charleston, , who was fined $22, and Lille Mae Jackson 41, of Charleston, fined $23, on charges of disturbing the peace by fighting. They were arrested Thursday.

2 teens arrested

BLOOMFIELD -- Two Malden teen-agers Mark Wieland, 18, and Carol Riggs, 17, are in custody of Stoddard County authorities today on charges of possession of marijuans.

The couple was arrested early today in Bernie by Bernie police. Bond was scheduled to be set today.

Gas demand expected to rise 5 to 8 per cent

WASHINGTON -- Is there a gas shortage? Yes and no. The situation is not critical, but motorists will be inconvenienced by spot shortages from time to time and place to place. Overall demand is greater than supply, and until refineries catch up, motorists will experience difficulty in getting all the gas they need in many parts of the country this summer and fall.

The likelihood of gasoline shortages this summer and fall does not add up to a disaster or crisis situation. It simply means that there is a relatively small difference between supply and demand. That is the assessment of Charles J. DiBona, Executive Director of the President's Energy Council

DiBona estimates that gas demand will increase from five to eight percent this summer. If the increase is on the low side, there may be no shortages at all, he says. But if it is on the high side, some regional shortages can develop and it may be necessary to redistribute available supplies.

WHAT CAN BE DONE? The NADA Energy Committee believes that the gap between gasoline supply and demand can be closed if industry, government and motorists take positive action.

Industry must accelerate its efforts to find and refine more motor fuel and government must assist industry with realistic programs and policies. These are long-term solutions and NADA will make recommendations in these areas at a later time.

In the meantime, the gas gap can be narrowed by the driving public. Dealers should urge their customers to get behind the effort by:

Cutting highway speed by at least 10 miles per hour (one gallon in 10 is saved by reducing speed from 60 to 50 mph);

Limiting use of automobile air conditioners and other accessories;

Using the grade of gasoline compatible with engine requirements;

Practicing smarter driving techinques such as avoiding jackrabbit starts, driving at steady speeds, keeping tires properly inflated, warming engine sufficiently before driving; and,

Keeping cars properly tuned and maintained.

WHAT CAN DEALERS DO? Dealers should assure their customers that there will be sufficeint gasoline for all motorists -- and for all cars, big and small -- providing that industry, government and the public cooperate in a national effort to lick the problem. NADA believes the gas shortage will be short lived if long-term solutions by the industry and government are speedily implemented and immediate remedies are applied by the driving public. Dealers must help by:

1. Enlisting customer support of the national effort through personal contact with customers, making appearances before community civic groups, through use of newspaper, radio and television advertising, and by personal example;

2. Encouraging local and state industry and dealer organizations to study the problem and take appropriate action; and,

3, Supporting NADA recommendations for industry and government policies and programs.

WHAT NADA WILL DO. The NADA Energy Committee will investigate all aspects of the energy problem -- in particular the gasoline supply situation -- and report the facts to NADA members.

We know this now: A shortage of natural gas in the past few years caused manufacturers and consumers to fall back on fuel oil last winter to heat businesses and homes. As a result, crude oil that normally would have gone into building up gasoline stocks was used for heating oil. IN addition, gasoline demand has exceeded expectations because new cars with emission controls use more gas per mile than cars without controls. The Federal Office of Emergency Preparedness estimates that emission-control equipped cars account for 300,000 barrels daily of additional gasoline demand. On the basis of these facts and additional evaluations by the Energy Committee, NADA will make specific recommendations to industry and government.

These facts and recommendations will be reported to NADA members.

In addition, the Energy Committee will study and evaluate the increasing number of proposals by Federal and state governments to limit the use of cars and trucks. These proposed limitations include restrictions on the size, weight and design of cars and engines, taxes on parking and commuter travel, mandatory car pools and bans on downtown traffic.

Whenever possible in its reports to members on the gas supply problem and restrictions on car use, the Energy Committee will suggest ways dealers can help shape industry and government policies and programs, and also how they can conduct their businesses in order to survive in a fast-changing economic and social environment.

Dean admits discrepancy

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III conceded today he may have named the wrong hotel as the site of a key Watergate cover-up meeting.

It was the first factual discrepancy to turn up in five days of testimony before the Senate Watergate committee by the ousted White House counsel, who has said President Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up.

As the committee neared the end of Dean's cross-examination and a 10-day holiday break, Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., directed that the White House be asked to give Dean permission to photocopy his voluminous government and personal records still at the White House.

Dean, noting he has been asked to provide much data from those records, said "I would hope the committee would put the White House on notice or they may not be there when I get there."

Another set of records, provided to Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., by two Washington hotels, led to Dean's acknowledgement that he may have been wrong in naming the site of a meeting June 29, 1972 with Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal attorney.

But Dean told the committee he clearly recalled the substance of the meeting despite confusion over the site. He has testified the meeting concerned raising hush money for persons arrested at the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972.

Dean said he had met Kalmbach at the hotel coffee shop and then in a room at the Mayflower Hotel. Gurney produced records showing Kalmbach was registered at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, about three blocks away.

Dean, first saying perhaps Kalmbach registered under a false name, then said he had always confused the two hotels despite 10 years' residence in the Washington area.

Gurney said this cast doubt on other Dean testimony. After a brief pause and a whisper from his attorney, Dean said the coffee shop in the StatlerHilton is named the Mayflower. The audience in the packed hearing room broke into applause and cheers.

In a morning session punctuated by folksy stories told by Ervin and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., Dean was led again through some of his accounts of meetings with Nixon.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked Dean about White House actions taken against its political enemies, especially members of Congress.

Dean said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., had been under surveillance for a time by White House-directed agents. He said he knew of no buggings or break-ins employed against Kennedy.

Dean insisted that he took any role in planning of such operations only under extreme pressure. In this area, too, he often repeated testimony he had given earlier in the week.

Dean said also that he knew of no legal work done at the White House exploring whether Congress has a right to subpoena the President.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, one of the Democratic members of the committee, acknowledges there are forged signatures of his 1970 campaign chairman and treasurer on his campaign finance report filed in New Mexico.

Responding to a question Thursday night, the New Mexico Democrat said he was shocked to learn of the forgeries. He said he has "tried to ascertain who affixed these signatures, and I have not been able to find out."

Otherwise, Montoya said, the New Mexico report is in order.

The Washington Post, which made the inquiry, said today that New Mexico law governing campaign financing requires that a report be filed with the secretary of state "executed and subscribed by the chairman and the treasurer of the political committee."

Shortly before Dean began his fifth day of testimony, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman, appealed to President Nixon to give a sworn account of his meetings with his accuser, Dean, but said he believes the Constitution bars the committee from compelling the President to testify.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, DN.M., the first questioner of Dean today, asked about legal work performed by White House lawyers on separation of powers and executive privilege.

Dean said neither he nor anyone else he knew of had worked on such matters in relation to any subpoena of Nixon. Montoya did not directly suggest that Nixon be subpoenaed.

The committee heard Thursday that the President suggested through an aide last March that his attorney general publicly attack a charge by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., that top White House aides knew of or condoned political espionage.

FEMALE MOTORIST WARNED ON SAFETY

NEW YORK (AP) — The female motorist, regardless of Women's Lib, should refrain from being a "good guy" and picking up male hitchhikers, a safety expert advises.

Marjorie B. May, a safety director for the Greater New York Safety Council, says, "The woman who plays Good Samaritan by giving a hitchhiker a lift or stopping on a lonely road at sight of a disabled car is taking a greater risk than a male motorist under similar circumstances.

Juveniles break into concession stand

Three juveniles were taken into custody Thursday afternoon after they were seen breaking into the concession stand at the ballpark behind Southwest School.

Police were called about 1:45 p.m. by a teacher at the school who saw the boys break into the stand. Officers found the window broken out and three boys with candy and gum stolen from the concession stand.

Police were still deliberating this morning whether or not to turn the boys over to juvenile authorities. Two of the boys were 13 years old and one was 14.

No-burning law begins Sunday

Starting Sunday, a new city anti-burning ordinance will go into effect in an effort to bring Sikeston in line with new state environmental control regulations.

The ordinance prohibits burning of trash and garbage except in an incinerator approved by the Air Conservation Department.

The ordinance will be enforced by the fire department, which has the authority to file charges against violators

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said today that he would probably act on a complaint basis against violators. He said he would probably give out a warning or two before filing charges. Violators could receive fines up to $500.

Linnemeyer said that if the ordinance is not enforced, the city could get in trouble with the Air Conservation Department.

He added that if a trash fire turned into something more serious than burning garbage, he might dispense with the warnings and file charges. He cited the example of a trash fire Thursday night which, for a short time, threatend a 100,000 - gallon oil tank behing Krausse's War Surplus Store on West Malone Avenue.

The city has had an open burning ordinance for many years, but it has not been enforced. The ordinance states that burning rubbish, refuse, leaves, grass, wood, paper and garbage in open fires is specifically prohibited unless the fire department gives approval.

Burning was allowed in containers with smoke stacks or covers, to prevent sparks from spreading but a large number of people burned their trash in open containers.

Farmers can continue to burn their fields, provided they do so only for the removal of stubble. Current state air pollution regulations have allowed the burning and probably will not be changed, according to a spokesman for the Air Conservation Department.

He said it would be almost impossible to enforce a prohibition against field fires.

New ordinance requires changes from haulers

Garbage collectors in Sikeston have been worried about the new solid waste disposal ordinance and how it will affect them, while residents have been worried about whether enough garbage haulers will be able to stay in business to collect the trash.

For the past month or so a standoff has existed between garbage collectors and the city, each wanting to know what the other was going to do about the ordinance.

As the deadline of July 1 nears, the situation is starting to solve itself, but there are still some problems.

Five applications for private drayage licenses have been received by the city and a sixth person has indicated interest in staying in business, according to City Manager Jim Huff.

Applications from Sonny's Sanitation Service and Marvin Williams have been approved. The other applications will be ruled on in time to meet the July 1 deadline, Huff said.

As of this morning six trucks have been checked by Huff and all passed with certain conditions. Trucks inspected belonged to Edwin Carey, Jerome Johnson, Marvin Williams, Paul Tolbert, Malcolm Chappell and Willie Robinson. Some of the trucks need additional repairs, some need better seals, a couple need welding in the loading hopper and others have rust on the bodies, Huff said today. Trucks of Sonny Sanitation were being inspected later today.

In checking trucks to see that they are water tight as required, Huff said a hose will check leakage and the trucks will be graded on how well they are maintained.

Sikeston had 17 persons or businesses holding private drayage licenses under the old system. But a recent survey showed that about four of these were already out of business before the new ordinance was passed. Two or three of these just hauled their own trash and the others could not be reached for comment about their operations.

Most haulers were not willing to talk about what the new ordinance will mean to their business. Several said they only collected trash as a part- time job and could not handle the extra expense the ordinance would require. Others plan on staying in business if their applications and trucks are approved.

The trash haulers with a small business and with open bed trucks will have to either quit or buy the new trucks if they are to comply with the ordinance. The ordinance requires that trucks be water tight; be maintained in a safe, clean and sanitary condition; and be constructed, maintained and operated to prevent spillage of solid waste.

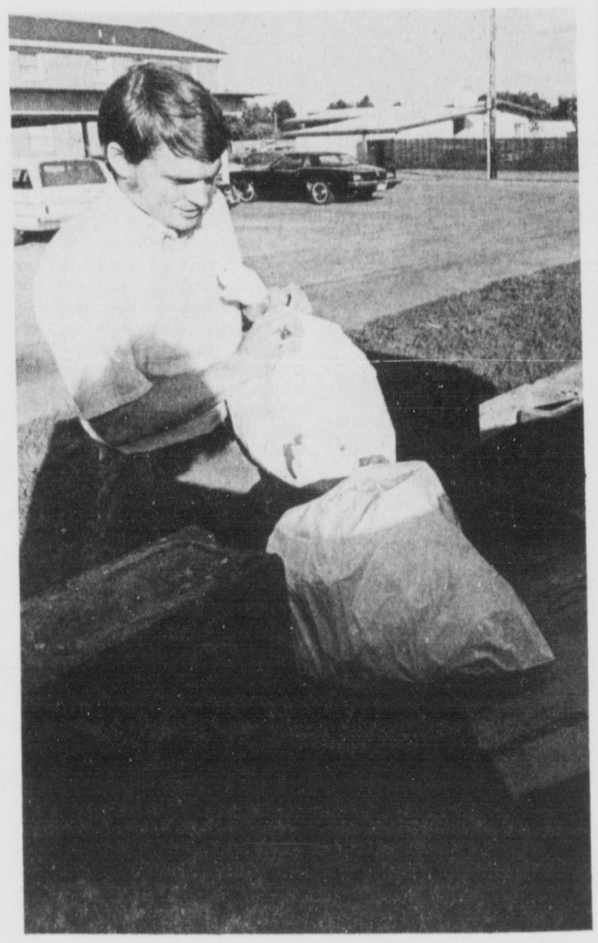

The new ordinance also requires that a person have a license to collect, transport, process or dispose of solid waste within the corporate limits of the city.

The private drayage haulers must also file and maintain with the city manager evidence of a satisfactory public liability insurance policy, covering all operations of the applicant pertaining to the business.

All vehicles will be required to carry policy coverage of no less than $100,000 for each person injured or killed, no less than $300,000 in the event of injury or death of two or more persons in any single accident and no less than $50,000 for damage to property.

The licenses cost $50 for each collection vehicle used. The old licenses were $35 for each truck.

The application must state the nature of the permit desired; the characteristics of solid wastes to be collected, transported, processed, or disposed; the number of solid waste vehicles to be operated; the precise location or locations of solid waste processing or disposal facilities to be used; boundaries of the collection area; and the rate schedule specifying the monthly cost of each type of service to be offered.

It's in the bag

Sikeston resident Ron Wells places his properly bagged trash in a converted incinerator in compliance with Sikeston's new and stricter solid waste disposal laws. Trash must be placed in containers that will allow easy pickup. (Daily Standard photo by Tim Ludwig)

A problem to the solid waste haulers is that the city must approve the landfill they will use, and thus far the city has not approved any landfill for disposal of the city's wastes. The ordinance states that disposal at other than an approved site will be cause for suspension of the private collector license.

In reference to drayage haulers, the city ordinance says that all residential solid waste shall be collected twice weekly with at least 48 hours between collections. Commercial solid waste shall be collected twice weekly except for solid waste containing garbage or hazardous material which shall be collected daily or at such intervals as are necessary.

Sonny Glaus of Sonny's Sanitation Service admits that his trucks were not built to be totally water tight, but that he had put new rubbers on the trucks and plans to put new bottoms in them before the deadline.

He added that even the new trucks are not completely water tight. "I talked to a friend of mine in St. Louis. He bought a truck brand new... gave $38,000 for it and in a week's time that thing was leaking. "If they will show me that these new trucks will not leak and do this and that, then I'd say yes, I would be glad to buy them,... but they are not on the market, he added.

Glaus said drayage haulers do not know where they stand with the city under the new ordinance and have been trying to find out, but to no avail.

If the trucks are not approved, Glaus said it would take six to eight months to get delivery on a new truck.

The amount of insurance required is also an extra expense to most of the haulers. Glaus said he has had that amount of insurance for eight years. Other haulers contacted said they did not have that much insurance.

Rates for residents are expected to go up because of the added cost of insurance, the higher cost of the landfill and the cost of mileage to and from the landfill site. Glaus explained that haulers must figure truck operating costs on an hourly scale, along with mileage, labor costs, upkeep and profit.

"If you don't get some profit you can't maintain your business," Glaus said. On a national scale he explained that it costs from $25 to $45 an hour for a collection operation.

Drayage haulers must pay 75 cents per cubic yard of uncompacted solid wastes at the nearest landfill near Morley. This has to raise rates to the residents because it is costing the haulers more than the old city dump did.

Also, several of the haulers contacted said they have been picking up trash only once a week in residential sections and will face added expense to pick it up twice a week.

Time is money to drayage haulers, as it is to men in other businesses. That is the reason Glaus has devised a new plan for his customers which requires his customers to buy plastic bags from him for a cost that would include the cost of collection.

The bags must be sealed and placed on the curbside on that person's collection day. "This system has worked well in other communities," Glaus said. The system allows people to pay only for the trash they have. In the past, he said people with a lot of trash paid the same as people with little to be collected.

At one point, in reference to the collection of fees, Glaus said, "Why should we have to comply with the law when the city isn't?" The state ordinance states that the city should contract for the collection of waste from all the residents, with the city collecting the service charge from the residents. The city does not plan to collect fees now, although Glaus feels that would help the collectors.

"The way I look at it," Glaus said, "on July 1, 1974, there are going to be a lot of court injunctions filed against cities." July 1, 1974, is the deadline set by the state for a plan to be submitted to the state for approval. The state will crack down in 1974, Glaus said.

It is still not clear what is really going to happen in the next few days, or if parts of the city will be without collection facilities, but it should be clearer what the haulers face with the new ordinance.

The standoff between the city and haulers will come to an end in a few days, and until that time, it seems that no one really knows what is going to happen, but it appears that the city will have enough haulers.

Phelps to speak in Dexter

DEXTER -- Lt. Gov. William Phelps will serve as grand marshall in a parade at 12:30 p.m. Saturday to kick off Centennial Week festivities.

Also invited to ride in the parade is 159th District Rep. C.F. Cline of Sikeston.

The Spirit of St. Louis Drum and Bugle Corps will be a parade attraction and will present a 30-minute concert on the Big Star Store parking lot following the parade.

Others in the parade will be the police chief; fire chief; Shrine patrol minibikes; Jo Jewels, Little Miss Dexter; Dexter High School band; National Guard marching unit; antique vehicles. Shrine mounted patrol on palamino horses; fire trucks; National Guard vehicles; and local saddle clubs.

Electric guitars stolen

CHARLESTON -- The Mississippi County Sheriff's department is investigation a burglary at the Cecil Taylor home near Dogwood.

The break-in was discovered Thursday night by two boys who had gone to the Taylor home to feed Taylor's dogs while the family is away on vacation.

Deputy sheriff Mike Baughman, who was notified about 10 p.m., said entry was gained by kicking in the lower panel of a wooden rear door of the home.

The only items believed to have been taken were two electric guitars.

Young woman is jailed in assault case

CHARLESTON — Gloria Jean Swift, 17, of Wyatt is being held in Mississippi County jail and charges of assault with a deadly weapon are expected to be filed today, according to Deputy Sheriff Mike Baughman.

Miss Swift, who was arrested by Wyatt town marshal John Pearson, is accused of attacking Junior Curry of Wyatt with a beer bottle during a fight in Charlie Jackson's Tavern in Wyatt Thursday night.

Fire threatens 100,000 gallon storage tank

A trash fire threatened for a while Thursday night to become something much larger when it ignited oil leaking from a 100,000-gallon storage tank behind Krause's War Surplus, 833 W. Malone Ave.

Firemen said the oil had leaked out into a ditch from the tank. When they arrived at 7:45 p.m., the flames had reached the tank, firemen said, but were extinguished without damage.

At 10:35 p.m. firemen were called to the Lyle Davis home, 1614 Oklahoma, to extinguish a fire in a chair after neighbors noticed smoke coming from the house. No one was at home at the time of the blaze.

Firemen said damage was minor. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Grower is new humane officer

Terry Grower, 23, of Route Four, has been named Humane Officer, according to City Manager Jim Huff.

Auxiliary Police Officer Dan Cannon, who has been Humane Officer since the registration of Jim Sherwood, is quiting to take another job. Grower began riding with Cannon today.

Grower is married and has one child.

Nothing guarantees success

Cities fight for industry

Competition is strong among cities seeking new industry and nothing can guarantee a community's success, according to William B. Barrett of West Point, Miss.

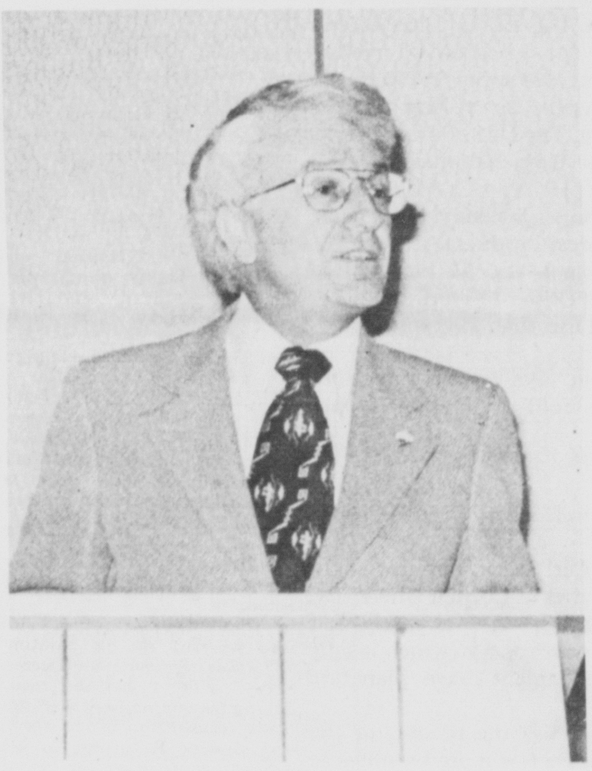

Barrett spoke at noon Thursday to the Chamber of Commerce. He is chairman of the Ozark Industrial Development Commission and executive director of the Northeastern Mississippi Industrial Development Association.

He said there are 16,000 different organizations in the country seeking new industry and that enticing one into the community is a difficult task. However, Barrett said industry will spend $35.5 billion on new plants this year and $42 billion next year.

A community can hope to get one firm for every 20 which visits the city, Barrett said.

"Industry goes where it is invited", he said, "and stays and expands where it is well treated."

An industry will locate in an area because it is close to markets and raw materials or will provide an adequate labor pool, he said.

William Barrett

In addition, to succeed, a city must have an organization which will represent the city in its dealings with industry. The city must have a program to improve the community and find and sell the prospects on the community. Sites or available buildings are a must. There must be an adequate labor supply.

There are seven other additions to a city's industrial development program which can help attract industry, Barrett said. They include good leadership in the organization which deals with the businesses; affiliation with other organizations, such as the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission; and an effective committee. Barrett suggested five- man committees which should include the mayor, a banker and a plant manager.

Money is also needed to run a development program; comprehensive data is needed on the city, such as number of laborers available and power supplies. Also helpful are an available building and a good, clean community.

Scott damages top $1.8 million

BENTON — Glenn Greene of Sikeston, Scott County Civil Defense director, told the County Court Thursday that personal and public property damages totaled $1,864,641.95 during spring flooding in the county.

Itemized damages in the county included:

Oran — business, $36,000; homes, $12,000; roads and streets, $7,800; total, $55,800.

Chaffee — business, $753,000; homes, $94,737.95; roads and streets, $56,400; total, $904,197.95.

Scott City — business and residential, $404,197; personal, $86,597; public, $105,000; total, $595,794.

Illmo — business, $90,400; residential, $78,450; streets, $15,000; total, $183,850.

Scott County rural roads and bridges, $124,000.

Kathleen Gipson, director of the Scott County Welfare Department, gave the court a list of banks in the county that will handle food stamps. Included are: Scott City Bank and Trust Co., Oran State Bank, Bank of Chaffee, First National Bank of Sikeston and Tri-County Bank of Morehouse.

Mrs. Gipson said persons eligible for food stamps may purchase the stamps at any of the five banks and can spend them at any store where a food stamp sign is displayed.

Kay Hymas, a representative of the State Highway Department from Jefferson City, met Monday with C. R. Waters of Waters & Associates, Engineers of Sikeston to assess damages to the county roads, bridges and ditches in the first flooding.

Scott County will host the monthly luncheon meeting at 10 a.m. Saturday of Southeast Missouri County Officers Association at the Sikeston Ramada Inn.

Officials from Scott, Mississippi, Cape Girardeau, Bollinger, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Iron and Perry counties will attend the meeting.

Paul F. Dow of Jefferson City, executive director of the Missouri Association of Counties, will attend the meeting to explain some of the new laws affecting counties.

Train smashes car sitting on RR Tracks

An automobile was demolished about 3:45 a.m. today when it was struck by a Frisco train at the Salcedo Road crossing.

Bill Boshears, 19, of 103 Selma told police that he was turning around on the tracks when the engine of his car died. He left the car there and went home, apparently to get help in moving it. Boshears said he didn't realize his car was over the tracks.

The vehicle was struck by the train whose engine, C. R. Harmon of Cape Girardeau, said he did not see the car until it was too late to stop.

The impact knocked the car 60 feet down the tracks.

Boshears was arrested for parking his car within 50 feet of the railroad tracks.

Stereo and speakers taken

A stereo tape player and two speakers were stolen Thursday night or early today from an automobile belonging to Marvin Brown, 220 Dye, according to police.

Police said the tape player and speakers were taken from the car between 11 p.m. Thursday and 7:15 a.m. today while the car was parked at Brown's home.

The value of the player and speakers was placed at $68.

LUMBER AND WHEAT

What do lumber and wheat have in common? Well, along with steel, soybeans, copper, corn, gold and just about any other agricultural product or natural resource you can name, they are in heavy and growing demand throughout the world. And although Washington is still interested in beefing up American exports to improve the balance of payments, export controls have been placed on wheat and will be placed on logs and lumber. With both wheat and lumber, sales abroad have run down domestic supplies, creating a demand pinch that has sent prices soaring.

The Senate Banking Committee voted 10-2 May 16 to impose ceilings on log and lumber exports beginning Sunday, July 1 -- the beginning of the 1974 fiscal year. The bill would hold log exports to a total of 2.25 billion board feet and lumber to 1.2 feet during fiscal 1974. Even if Congress fails to act on the bill incorporating the ceilings, lumber exports are expected to be cut back. Japanese and American negotiators have already agreed to impose a voluntary quota on lumber shipments from the United States. Japan will hold its fiscal 1974 imports down to 90 per cent of what it imported during 1972.

Reasons for the concern are not hard to find. The price of construction lumber has risen by 50 per cent over the past two years, according to Department of Labor statistics. Plywood is up 28 per cent. The National Association of Home Builders claims that rising lumber prices over 1971 and 1972 have added $1,200 to the cost of an average home. And higher homebuilding costs, along with higher interest rates, mean higher rents and mortgage payments.

The upward pressure on grain prices should be short - lived. The Agriculture Department can unleash the nation's farmers to plant a record harvest -- weather permitting. Increasing the supply of lumber is more difficult. For one thing, it takes at least 20 years for a crop of trees to mature. The U. S. Forest Service has increased sales of timber from national forests -- from 10 billion board feet in 1972 to 11.8 billion this year. But the lumber shortage is likely to remain, according to the National Forest Products Association, until a way is found to unlock the 59 per cent of American timber land that is held by farmers and other landowners in plots averaging less than 100 acres.

GOOD HEAVENS!

Billions for defense, but nothing for the search for extraterrestrial life.

That is the lament of Dr. Carl Sagan, director of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies at Cornell University, who writes in Intellectual Digest that as many as a hundred billion stars in our own galaxy (which is only one of billions of galaxies) might have planetary systems like our own.

Just as the military brass raise the specter of the U.S.S.R. every time they want a few more bombers or something, Sagan notes that the Soviet Union "is now actively pursuing a radioastronomical search for signals from extraterrestrial civilizations on planets of other stars."

For what we spend for a few bombers, says Sagan, we could build a major astronomical facility and be doing the same thing.

Earth- centered cynics, of course, will be tempted to argue that if we spent money NEITHER on bombers NOR in looking for extraterrestrial life we'd be even further ahead.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a movie usherette gets tired of hearing:

"Baby, with a face like yours, you ought to be on the screen yourself."

"We'd like two seats, please, not too far up front, not too far back, and not too much in the middle either — if you know what I mean."

"There's a full moon out tonight, Gloria. That means you'll have trouble keeping half the audience out of the other half's laps. There is nothing like a full moon to bring out the lovers."

"How can I put out my cigar when it's not even lit? I just use it to chew on when the plot gets exciting."

"Young lady, I wish to report a possible sex fiend. No, he didn't touch me or anything, but I could tell by the way he looked that he had something on his mind."

"Hey, Miss, could you hold my baby while I go to the powder room? I have to have a cigarette or I'll die."

"You get to see the same picture so often, I bet you sometimes wish thy'd run it backward, don't you?"

"Young lady, I forgot to get some popcorn. I'll give you a dollar if you run out to the lobby and get me some — and you can keep the change."

"In the old days I could see a better film for this for 15 cents — and get a free piece of dishware, too."

"Would you help me, Miss? I slipped off my shoes to be more comfortable, and I think some smark aleck kid sitting next to me kicked one of them into the next aisle."

"Listen, sweet stuff, if I hang around until you get off work, how about having a drink with me, and I'll take you to see the midnight flick in the next block?"

PIPES FROM TEXAS GO TO ALASKAN CITY

The installation of storm drains to improve a highway in the state of Alaska was an entineering challenge which was solved by a Texas product.

Located 150 miles southwest of Anchorage, the town of Soldotna serves as an important junction on the highway serving Alaska's scenic, historic and commercially important Kenai peninsula.

Soldotna is located on relatively flat ground and engineers decided this flat grade required pipe with smoother flow characteristics than the corrugated metal pipe used on the rest of the job.

Reinforced plastic mortar pipe was selected by Green Construction of Anchorage, contractor on the job, and shipped 4,000 miles from a Johns- Manville plant located in Denison, Texas.

Anger is often more harmful than the injury that caused it.

When Leonardo da Vinci was working on his painting "The Last Supper," he became angry with a certain man. Losing his temper he lashed the other fellow with bitter words and threats. Returning to his canvas he attempted to work on the face of Jesus, but was unable to do so. He was so upset he could not compose himself for the painstaking work. Finally he put down his tools and sought out the man and asked his forgiveness. The man accepted his apology and Leonardo was able to return to his workshop and finish painting the face of Jesus.

REALISM AND SECURITY

While the visit of Leonid Brezhnev to the United States raises hopes of improved relations with the Soviet Union in the future, it is the duty of America's leaders to work unceasingly to strengthen the nation's defenses. Unfortunately, the Soviets have a record of duplicity in the conduct of foreign affairs. If they detect an advantage, they may abandon the detente overnight and engage in new threatening actions.

The American people can be thankful, therefore, that they have realistic leaders in the country's defense establishment. William P. Clements, Acting Secretary of Defense, is one of those leaders. While the nation waits for the Senate to confirm Secretary of Defense- designate James R. Schlesinger, Mr. Clement is running the Defense Department with a firm hand. Mr. Clement's realism was evidenced in a recent news conference in which he said: "Regardless of whether we exchange students and have traveling basektball teams and commercial treaties, what I'm interested in is what capabilities the Russian armed forces have. I think I have good reason for apprehenson." This kind of realistic thinking is America's first line of defense.

American citizens also can be thankful that they have the same quality leadership in the most senior position of uniformed authority. Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, USN, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, displays a strictly realistic view of the nation's power position with respect to the Soviets.

In a recent address to the American Ordnance Assn., Adm. Moorer pointed out that the U. S. entered the decade of the seventies mired in an unwanted war and at "the end of an era of overwhelming U. S. superiority in military power." Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara's disastrous mistakes in defense policy planning in the 1960s caused the United States to lose the wide margin of military superiority that assured peace and security.

Adm. Moorer recited the grim facts of the existing situation, noting that the "USSR has now surpassed the United States in number of (missile) delivery vehicles ... With respect to megatons, the USSR already far surpasses the U. S. and is expected to maintain its predominant lead." The admiral warned that the U. S. technological lead in defense systems "has been steadily narrowing over the past decade."

The ordinary citizen wonders how it is that the Soviets get so much bang for a buck, to use a phrase coined by an earlier Secretary of Defense. Adm. Moorer explained that, remarking that "in 1964 manpower and related costs absorbed about 43 per cent of the U. S. defense budget. This year, these same costs have risen to 56 per cent of budget outlays -- an increase of 13 percentage points in 10 years. On the Soviet side,, they are spending not more than 35 per cent of their budget on manpower costs."

Put in other terms, the Soviets are enjoying the benefits of a Spartan society. They don't offer handsome cash bonuses to keep skilled servicemen on duty. They don't provide a military salary scale competitive with the civilian economy. They don't devote large sums to constructing comfortable crew quarters on warships. With the savings they achieve in manpower, they can afford to buy more missiles, aircraft, ships and tanks.

The anti-defense lobby in Congress is agitating for massive cuts in an already inadequate U. S. defense budget. The foes of preparedness complain that the defense budget is extravagant. But, as Adm. Moorer said in his address to the AOA, "on a comparable buying- power basis, the proposed defense budget is 10 per cent lower" than the pre- Vietnam 1964 defense budget. This is the kind of factual information that Congress must pay attention to if America is to enjoy national security in the years ahead.

OIL FIRMS BOOSTING ENVIRONMENTAL FUNDS

Petroleum companies are spending an average of some $3.3 million a day to protect the U.S. environment, according to preliminary results of an American Petroleum Institute survey.

The survey indicates that estimated environmental expenditures during the past year totaled $1.2 billion, of which more than $1 billion was spent on air and water conservation. The rest of the money went for land restoration, solid waste disposal and noice control.

This year's estimated spending on air and water conservation is four times as great as in 1966, the first year for which figures were gathered. The total fo: the seven-year period is expected to reach $4.5 billion.

During a hike in the woods a troop of boy scouts came across an abandoned section of railroad track. Each, in turn, tried walking the rails but eventually lost his balance and tumbled off.

Suddenly two of the boys, after considerable whispering, offered to bet that they could both walk the entire length of the track without falling off. Challenged to make good their boast, the two boys jumped up on opposite rails, extended a hand to balance each other, and walked the entire section of track with no difficulty whatever.

There, in a nutshell, is the principle of modern business and community living. The day of the hermit and the lone wolf are gone forever. We do things better, we produce more, and we live better by helping each other. The fellow who lends a helping hand benefits himself at the same time as he helps the other fellow.

The reverse is also true. When we don't help each other, when we don't cooperate, the whole system starts to rattle and shake.

The difference between a good company and a poor one, an effective department and an inefficient one, is often reflected in the cooperation, or lack of it, among the people who work there. When people help each other, freely and voluntarily, there's a spirit of teamwork that makes a department or company really go — a pleasure to be associated with. When there's no cooperation — no spirit of the helping hand freely given — what might have been pleasant jobs become grudging chores. Do you recall when Edmund Hillary and his native guide, Tenzing, made their historic climb of Mt. Everest? Coming down from the peak Hillary suddenly lost his footing. Tenzing held the line taut and kept them both from falling by digging his ax into the ice. Later Tenzing refused any special credit for saving Hillary's life; he considered it a routine part of the job. As he put it: "Mountain climbers always help each other."

Should the rest of us be any different?

"THE CROWDING SYNDROME"

Caroline Bird, who wrote the provocative book "Born Female" in which the liabilities of being a woman were presented in a highly readable fashion, has now written another book, entitled "The Crowding Syndrome". Her latest work is devoted to presenting an optimistic view of our evermore crowded planet.

Unlike the many who look to the future and see only doom caused by too many people, too many things and too much talk, Caroline Bird in "The Crowding Syndrome" endeavors to show how we have simply been looking at all our problems backward. She takes the position that instead of bewailing the idea that the world will soon have four billion people and employing makeshift, largely futile attempts to change the probability, we should view the situation realistically and start developing bold new ways to feed, house and support the growing population. Her suggestions and recommendations will stir controversy, especially those that inescapably indicate a course of greater government intervention in our lives. Nevertheless, the book is a titillating attempt to look at the future with optimism -- a future that a lot of people are tempted to turn away from in despair.

NIX ON TAX HIKE

Campaign promises notwithstanding, the Nixon Administration is reported considering proposals to raise the tax on gasoline and other unnamed items. Despite pledges made during the 1972 campaign not to "add to the tax burden of the American wage earner", White House economic advisors argue that tax increases would curb gas consumption, help to balance the Federal budget and have the effect of cooling off the inflated economy. This represents a complete reversal of the Administration's strategy of last November, when Nixon expressed the fear that to increase the tax burden would "do much to destroy the incentives which produce the progress we want."

This assessment was not less correct before the election than now. The Administration must look to other measures to accomplish these economic objectives. It lies within the power of the Federal Reserve to partially reduce inflation, by controlling the supply of money and interest rates on loans. The problem of gas consumption can be overcome far more realistically, by eliminating price controls and allowing the increase in price to adjust the demand for existing supplies. The price increase would consequently provide incentive for exploration and the building of new refineries by the oil industry. A more constructive solution towards balancing the Federal budget would be to further cut Federal expenditures and eliminate unnecessary governmental excesses which are helping inflate the economy.

In Alpaca Revisited, the novel describing life in the mythical republic of Alpaca, it was observed that higher taxes are no remedy for inflation; they result only in more inflation. Higher taxes absorb some purchasing power, but they increase all costs of doing business, in production, transportation and distribution, which results in higher prices and increased inflation. Rather than raising taxes, the Administration should concentrate on alleviating the tax burden by reducing domestic spending programs and allow the personal enterprise profit-motive system to operate unhindered.

Inside Phase our:

Phase Three --- With Razor - Sharp Enforcers

WASHINGTON —— By the time "deputy president" of the U.S. George Shultz reached for his wine glass at the Israeli Embassy party Monday night, it had been a long pre-Phase Four day even for an ex-fighting Marine. Wearily and wistfully, he raised his drink in a toast to the guest of honor, Israeli finance minister and strong man Pinhas Sapir.

"In the circle of finance ministers," said Shultz, "Mr. Sapir is not only senior but wisest. He proved his wisdom by instituting a wage-price freeze while he was out of the country."

Laughter. Sympathy. But no advice. Perhaps Phase Four watchers should keep an eye on Shultz's travel plans.

Thus far these are not on his schedule - a tough one. It must be if he's to get the new control system blueprint on paper to satisfy President Nixon's eagerness to meet a July 15 deadline for de-icing the Freeze.

It's all rolling. At 11 o'clock Monday morning, Shultz and the more and more visible Cost of Living czar Prof. John (it will be all right, Jack) Dunlop met in the Treasury building with four policy-making labor chiefs -- George Meany, his AFL-CIO second-in-command, Lane Kirkland; the Seafarers' Paul Bunyanesque Paul Hall; and the affable steel leader I.W. "Abe" Abel.

It was the first of the consultative sessions arranged by the executive in charge of such consultations, one John Larson, former assistant secretary of the Interior Dept. for program policy. It was an amiable hour-long session. Consensus: Phase Four would have to be tough across the board. Reports have it -- no new wage freeze. Just more rigid enforcement of the Phase Two 5.5 per cent yearly wage ceiling plus fringes plus elimination of "inequities."

At 4 o'clock, Jake Dunlop called the powerful Cost of Living Council to order. The ex-Harvard dean was under the gun: rumor had it that angry fowl farmers, squeezed between the retail price ceiling and unlimited costs of rocketing feed prices, were planning to send him carloads of chicks they couldn't afford to raise.

Shultz listened most of the time. Talk was serious. Consensus: too many bids for exceptions from the freeze. And there must be an appeal to Congress for new laws permitting the cutting off of exports and for the emptying of stockpiles to ease the supply at home. And Phase Four must be tough.

Other consultative sessions were scheduled. Former Defense Deputy Secretary David Packard had set one up with businessmen in San Francisco. There would be a July 4 holiday hiatus for some. But not for Shultz. He might not even get a chance to play golf with Meany who appears to have a case of tendonitis -- ominous for the pre—Phase Four atmosphere.

For Shultz and Dunlop and company have an appointment with the Cost of Living Council Labor - Management Advisory Committee Tuesday morning, July 10.

It should all be on paper them. That day it is expected Dunlop will come in with plans for a ceiling on business executive compensation, bonuses, etc. And for a beefing up of the "bureaucracy" --- a mighty vital word from now on. He should have the whole spectrum. The labor chiefs won't budge without a guarantee of tough controls on foods and some word on rents.

If this timetable is kept, there may be a short freeze, the phrase Prof, Herbert Stein, Economic Advisers Council chairman, is using. His deadline is July 13. A Friday.

But the President could hit the tube on Sunday, July 15. As Mr. Nixon did in 1971, he could use one of two options. He could tell the public what he's going to tell them: The freeze will run another month. But here is what Phrase Four will be. Or he could, if the crunch is glaciering small businesses to death, simply lift the freeze without a 30-day notice.

But what of Phase Four? Again, few know. The President is the arbiter. He will take his packet of advice to his hideaway in the Executive Office Building, confer with his ace speechwriter Ray Price, and work it out by himself.

There are only clues now to the new phase. Stein has been saying it will be mostly cosmetic. That the freeze was merely "psychological." That it is the "overture necessary to create the atmosphere for the opera which follows, but disappointing if the opera doesn't satisfy. The opera is Phase Four."

The theme is much like Phase Three. With enforcement attached. The Cost of Living Council has Pay and Price Divisions. These will be beefed up. They will be put in the hands of experienced professionals. They will crack down on violations of the phase. The big stick will be jerked from the closet.

There will be a big bureaucracy. Delays. Slowing down approvals. As Shultz said the other day: "In the theory of controls, it is clear that one of the main reasons why they achieve whatever they achieve is through bureaucratic delay...

"Well, what happens is it (wage and price increase applications --VR) gets processed, argued about, referred, sent back to you, and so on and so on and so on, and then three months later, you get to do half what you applied for, and then a little bit later you get to the other half..."

"What was going to happen happened, but it doesn't happen as fast."

There's a swift view of Phase Four.If it doesn't work, George Shultz himself may take a long trip for a toast by Pinhas Sapir. All Rights Reserved

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Big H and Little H

WASHINGTON— White House insiders can hardly believe that Larry Higby has managed to ride out the Watergate storm, avoid the public spotlight and keep his job as a presidential deputy.

Under the Byzantine regime of former staff chief H.R. Haldeman, the brusque, bookish Higby, still in his 20s, occupied the catbird's seat. He was Haldeman's Haldeman. Few got past Haldeman into see the President; few got past Higby into see Haldeman. They were known around the White House as "Big H" and "little h."

Taking his cue from Haldeman, "little h" was curt, arrogant, insensitive. Senators have complained to us that their calls to the President would be routed through Higby who handled them abruptly and, on at least one occasion, he kept a prominent senator on hold.

Higby was totally involved in almost everything Haldeman did. Haldeman even stopped by in his White House limousine to pick up Higby in the mornings and to drop him off at his home in the evenings. Our White House sources insist Higby couldn't possibly have been unaware of Haldeman's Watergate involvement.

Specifically, they claim that Haldeman's political aide, Gordon Strachan, who allegedly submitted the Watergate reports to Haldeman, went through Higby almost without exception. However, Higby has told the Senate Watergate investigators quite a different story. He has sworn that he was not privy to the Watergate information, that Strachan dealt directly with Haldeman on this subject.

Both Haldeman and Strachan have left the White House under a cloud, but Higby remains on the payroll in good standing. Indeed, he received a pay raise last February.

Footnote: Long after Haldeman's departure, he continued to visit Higby almost daily at the White House. Higby refused to talk to us. Through a press spokesman, however, he denied any involvement in the Watergate affair. He explained that he continued to see Haldeman to help tie up loose ends.

REST HOUSES: While most Americans vacation at overpriced and overcrowded resorts packed next to their neighbors like coins in a pocket, a few well- connected bureaucrats are able to loll in the nation's most picturesque spots--- with the taxpayers picking up most of the tab.

From the lofty vistas of the Grand Tetons to delightfully deserted stretches of beach in the Virgin Islands, bigwigs from Congress, the White House and the government departments can enjoy the national parks in style.

The National Park Service, always ready to appease the powerful, operates 10 "rest houses" where VIPs can cavort without having to worry about the high cost of living.

The big guns of the Nixon Administration have shown a special affinity for Camp Hoover in the Shenandoah National Park not far from Washington. Among those who have relaxed at this sylvan retreat are Attorney General Elliot Richardson, acting FBI Director William Ruckelshaus, Deputy Budget Director Fred Malck and, on a slow weekend, Ronald Walker, who heads the park service.

Others have ventured as far as St. Johns or St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands to soak up the sun during the winter months. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, White House telecommunications czar Clay Whitehead and Guy Simpler, an assistant to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, are among the winter tourists who enjoyed the surf and sand during the expensive season for only $10 a day. This modest fee included the services of a government- paid caretaker.

Another visitor to the islands, Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., was irritated when other VIPs on the waiting list cut short his stay after only two weeks at the waterfront haven.

At Brinkerhoff Lodge in the Grand Tetons, the bill goes up to $45 a day for the park service's most luxurious villa. But those who have stayed there find it a bargain. The price includes maid service as well as a park ranger at the bureaucrat's beck and call.

None of these quarters, of course, are available to the millions of ordinary Americans who visit the parks.

Footnote: The park service would like to close down these fancy villas if the pampered bigwigs would permit it.

4 injured in 2 area accidents

Four persons were injured in two area accidents Thursday, according to the highway patrol.

Kathy Edmond, 17, of Perryville was slightly injured at 6:25 p.m. one mile west of Perry County on Route J when she lost control of her car, ran off the road and overturned.

Also injured were Renita Edmond, 14, minor eye injury and Patricia Edmond, 16, possible back and chest injury. All three were taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryvlle.

A truck and a car collided at 1:45 p.m. on Route N 10 miles southeast of Doniphan.

The accident occurred when a car driven west by Matthew Ruddock, 15, of Doniphan crossed the centerline and struck head on with a truck driver by Johnny Ray Harris, 42, of Doniphan.

Ruddock received a cut to his right eye and was treated at a doctor's office in Doniphan.

Woman cited for contempt

NEW MADRID — Circuit Judge William L. Ragland Thursday cited a former Sikeston woman, Mrs. Gloria L. Gilmore Sheroan of Glasgow, Ky., for contempt of court and ordered her minor son, Hugh Marvin Gilmore Jr. be made a ward of the court and returned to the state of Missouri.

Mrs. Sheroan was cited when she failed to appear in court to show why her former husband, Hugh Marvin Gilmore of Sikeston has been denied visitation rights with their son.

Mrs. Gilmore was granted care and custody of the child and the father was awarded reasonable visitation rights when the couple was divorced on April 27, 1971.

Gilmore charged that he has made repeated attempts to obtain reasonable visitation privileges and has been refused permission to have his child.

In a written answer filed to Gilmore's charges, Mrs. Sheroan denied she had refused Gilmore reasonable visitation rights. She requested the court to set definite terms for Gilmore's visitation rights, and stated travel difficulities would probably prevent her appearance in court Thursday.

Woman charged with assault waives hearing; bound over

CHARLESTON— Lucille Wilson of Charleston Route Two waived preliminary hearing on a felony charge of assault with intent to kill Thursday morning before Magistrate T.J. Brown, Jr. and was bound over to Circuit Court.

Mrs. Wilson, charged with the June 1 assault on Andrew Phillips with an axe, is free on $2,500 bond and is to appear in Circuit Court July 10.

Robert "Butch" Kemp of East Prairie waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of burglary involving breaking and entering. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Kemp and Wayne Dalton Rigsby, also of East Prairie, are accused of breaking into Turnbo's Tavern June 16 and stealing three cases of beer and food items. Rigsby's case was continued to July 5 and he is free on $2,500 bond.

A motion filed by Leslie Allen Achter for the disqualification of Judge Brown was sustained by the court and Magistrate Lloyd Briggs of Benton will be called to hear the three counts of burglary filed against Achter.

Roy Eugene Patrick of Charleston was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail on a driving while intoxicated charge and 10 days for driving while his operator's license was revoked. The sentences are to run concurrently.

A charge of common assault against Thomas Gant Williams brought a 30- day suspended sentence and one year probation. He was ordered to pay court costs of $24.20, obey the law and stay away from the home of his grandmother.

Misdemeanor charges and fines included: Dennis Clyde Gross of Charleston, careless and imprudent driving, $31; Robert Lee Waters of Bertrand, Missouri resident with out- of- state operator's license, No. 21; James Henry Reynolds of Bertrand, expired operator's license, $26; Dennis Neal Adams of Sikeston, operating motorcycle while not motorcycle qualified, $21; and Alex B. Zilafro of East Prairie, driving while intoxicated, $122.85.

A charge of no operator's or chauffeur's license against Jackie Russell Tomlin of Oran was dismissed and costs were certified to Mississippi County. Also dismissed was a common assault charge against Phillip Sullivan. Costs in the case were certified to the county. An account suit brought against James and Martha Carlisle was dismissed by Dr. Robert L. Robbins Jr.

Cases continued to July 5 included Courtney Hugh Blackburn of Cairo, Ill., failure to exercise care; Mary Thompson Marshall of Charleston, driving while intoxicated and speeding; Paul Casner Brown of Illmo, overlength; and Larry Dale Houston of East Prairie, speeding.

Continued to July 12 was a charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, against Jimmie Darrell Hicks of Sikeston. A charge of tampering with a motor vehicle against Mike Harvell was continued to July 19.

A warrant was issued for Albert Damon Long of Sikeston after failure to appear on a speeding charge.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

No man has even seen God; if we love one another, God abides in us and his love is perfected in us. [1 John 4:12]
PRAYER: Father, forgive us for our indifference toward our fellowmen. Help us to reach out to them that we may know You better and love them more for Jesus' sake and ours. Amen.

Ann Landers

Mothers are warned never to leave children alone

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please, please tell mothers, whether they live in big cities or small towns, that they must NEVER leave their small children alone.

I have a friend who causes me untold anxiety. She has a six- year- old boy, a five- year- old girl and a 10- month- old baby. She runs to the Post Office (three blocks away), to the grocery store and to her girl friend's house for a two- hour coffeeklatch. All day long she is running someplace and her children are alone. Her husband goes to school in a nearby city and gets home every other weekend. He condones her behavior. Last week they had dinner with some relatives and left their children by themselves until nearly midnight. Their apartment is next to a gas station, across the street from a supermarket and a restaurant. Anything could happen. We have many mutual friends who know she leaves these youngsters alone but nobody will say anything. They insist it's "not their business." I thought I'd try you. I know she reads your column all the time because she quotes you a lot. Please tell her, Ann. Thank you.--- I Care

Dear I.C.: I care, too, and I hope that young mother comes to her senses before something terrible happens. The possibilities for disaster are endless.

It's strange how many people insure their homes, cars and jewelry. But their most valuable possessions--- their children--- they leave unguarded and trust to luck that some guardian angel will keep them safe and sound. When you see this column in the paper, please make sure SHE does.

Dear Ann Landers: I need help with our 15- year- old daughter. She is five- feet- four and weights 160 pounds--- at least. I am five- five and have weighed 125 pounds for the last ten years.

The girl has a beautiful face but she is enormous. I've offered her lovely clothes as an incentive to lose weight. I've bought her books on diet and nutrition, sent away for literature and reducing programs put out by weight- losing groups, offered her psychiatric therapy--- everything under the sun--- but she is completely uncooperative and will have nothing to do with any of it.

"D" is a quiet person, obedient, respectful, good in school, never seems to have any trouble with anyone, but she has few friends and is content to be alone with her books and records. The thing that baffles me is that I have never seen her eat bread, potatoes or desserts, and she doesn't snack all day the way some teen- agers do. I can't figure out why she is at least 30 pounds overweight.

The girl is in good health but not interested in sports. Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated.--- Dead End Mother

Dear Mother: The fact that you have never seen your daughter eat fattening foods does not mean she isn't eating them. There are closet eaters--- as sure as there are closet drinkers.

Your attempted bribes give me a clue. Fat daughters who have slim mothers invariably have a special set of emotional problems. The fact that you mention YOUR weight gives me another clue. I suspect there is some deep- seated hostility and competitiveness in her relationship with you.

Take "D" to a doctor for a complete physical check- up. Let HIM suggest a diet and counseling--- and you stay out of it. When you stop talking about her weight she'll probably start doing something about it.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope On Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Debra Pobst exchanges vows with Tom Holland

Miss Debra Ann Pobst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pobst, Route Four, and Thomas Martin Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Holland, 1409 Henry St., were united in marriage June 1 at 7 p.m. at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church. The Rev. Father Robert Schumacher officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

Prenuptial organ music was provided by Joel Allen, who also accompanied Lewis Watkins of Vanduser as he sang, "Moore" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The church was decorated with large baskets of fuji- mums, pink shades of carnations and white lilies. A large cherub stood on a pedestal directly in front of the altar holding a large bouquet of red roses. The couple were united in marriage in front of a large brass arch. Large pink bows accented the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of satin with an overlay of organza. A large rufle at the hem was accented with rows of lace. The bodice was of satin with an overlay of Chantilly lace. Sleeves were of organza with large lace cuffs and 10 pearl buttons on each cuff. Her chapel train was accented by lace which matched the lace in the gown. The headpiece was of the same lace and dotted with tiny seed pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, pink rosebuds and baby's breath with pink and white streamers.

As the bride was escorted down the aisle, she paused to present a single long- stemmed red rose to her mother and the groom's mother.

Mrs. Pam Edwards, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Patty Pobst, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Robert Lashmet were bridesmaids. They wore floor- length gowns of sheer pink floral organza over hot pink satin linings. The gowns were styled with high collars, and long puffed sleeves cuffed at the wrists. They wore white hats accented by various shades of pink flowers.

Kim Graviett served as flower girl. Her dress was identical to the other attendants. She carried a basket filled with various shades of pink rosebuds. Aaron Pobst, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer. He wore a white dinner jacket with burgundy pants.

Robert Lashmet was best man and Mike Pobst, brother of the bride, and George Holland Jr., brother of the groom, were groomsmen. Ushers were Chuck and David Pobst.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Pobst chose a floor- length dress of mint green and white polyester knit. She wore white accessories and a corsage of white and pink roses. Mrs. Holland, mother of the groom, wore a blue street- length dress of polyester knit. Her accessories were white, and she wore a corsage of white and pink roses, also.

A reception was held following the ceremony at Security Federal Savings and Loan. The bride's table was centered with a three- tiered wedding cake trimmed in multi-colors of pink and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The table was covered with a white linen cloth and caught up with pink bridal bells.

A candelabra flanked each side of the cake. Punch at each ends of the table, silver compotes holding nuts and mints and a floral arrangement of pink and white roses completed the table setting. Directly adjacent to the main table was a silver service. The gift table was covered with a white cloth and bouquet of red roses, and the guest book table was covered with a pink cloth, pink carnations and a wicker basket holding the rice bags.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin Holland

Those serving were Mrs. Floyd Pobst, Mrs. Eugene Pobst, Mrs. James Pobst, Mrs. Gene Murphy, Mrs. James Payne and Miss Barbara Bright. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Melanie Shell.

After a short honeymoon the couple is living at 841 Mary St.

Miss Baker bride of D. Leonard

WINNEBAGO, Ill. — Miss Sheryl Lynn Baker of Sikeston, Mo., and David Allen Leonard were married June 7 at 7 p.m. in the Winnebago Presbyterian Church by the Rev. William Butler.

Miss Baker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker of 126 Autumn Drive, Sikeston, former residents of Winnebago. Leonard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Oakes of Winnebago.

The bride chose for her wedding a pastel-pink street-length dress.

Robin Baker of Sikeston served her sister as maid of honor, and Steven Leonard of Winnebago was his brogher's best man.

The new Mrs. Leonard is a graduate of Sikeston High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, Mo., for one year. Leonard is a graduate of Winnebago High School.

The couple lives in Janesville, Wis.

BIRTHS

PARKER— Mr. and Mrs. Mike Parker of Oklahoma City, Okla., are parents of a daughter born June 20 at 7:07 p.m. in South Community Hospital in Oklahoma City. The child weighed six pounds 10 ounces and has been named Dara Michelle.

Mrs. Parker is the former Janet Lou Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Cook of Oklahoma City, former residents of Morehouse. Parker, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Parker of Oklahoma, is a teacher in Western Heights School in Oklahoma City. Paternal great- grandparents are the Rev. and Mrs. A.C. Sullivant of Morehouse.

RISCO -- Applications are being sought for entries in the royalty contests to be held in conjunction with the annual Risco July 4th picnic and barbecue.

Awards will be presented to the first, second and third contestants in the "Miss Independence Day" category, ages 14-19 years. Savings bonds in the amount of $100 for first place, $50 for second place and $25 for third place will be given.

Other prizes will be presented to winners in the Junior Miss category, ages 9-13; to the Little Miss category winner, ages 5-8; and to the Little Mister category winner, ages 5-8.

There is no entry fee for the contests. For more information, phone 396-5566 or 396-5691.

RISCO – Mrs. Bob Medlin entertained Friday for her son Donnie's ninth birthday. Guests were served from a birthday cake fashioned in the shape of a baseball cap.

Attending were Mrs. W.B. Medlin and Debbie; Carolyn and Pamela Lancaster; and Gloria, Robin and Roger Parks.

NOW HEAR THIS

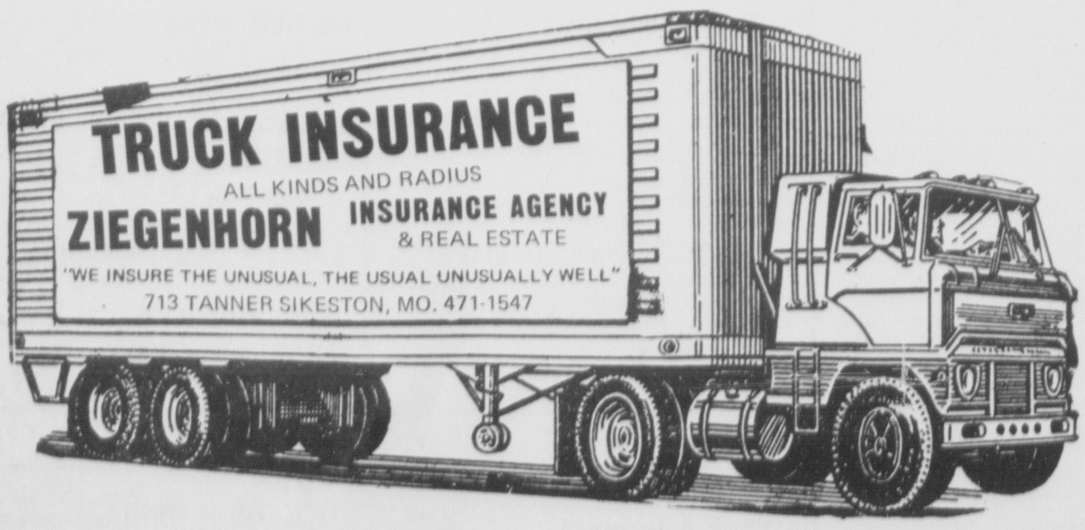

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated 19 million persons in the United States, including about 3.5 million school-age children, have substantial hearing defects. At least half of these can be helped by hearing aids, but only about 2.5 persons wear hearing aids today, says James P. Ince, executive secretary of the Hearing Aid Industry Conference.

More than 90 per cent of all disabling hearing losses can be significantly improved by medicine, surgery or amplification through hearing aids, Ince estimates.

Such persons are urged to consult a medical doctor — preferably an otologist or otolaryngologist (ear specialist).

Education of young is objective of AEYC

By EDITH LUSK
Area Child & Family Development Specialist

PERRYVILLE — The district Association for the Education of Young Children includes members from the six Delta Area Counties of Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard, New Madrid, Mississippi and Scott; and from the seven Southeast Missouri Counties of Cape Girardeau, Perry, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, Iron, Madison and Bollinger Counties.

At the recently held meeting in the Child Study Center of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, the president, Mrs. J. F.Blackiston, presided over the election of officers for the 1973-74 program year which begins in September.

Mrs. Mary E. Arbuckle, head teacher of Wardell Head Start was elected as president. Mrs. Marty Skaggs, an area Head Start supervisor at Flat River, was chosen first vice president, whose responsibilities also include the chairwomanship of the district's program committee.

Mrs. Lloyd Banks of Jackson was elected second vice president. This office also includes the chairwomanship of the district membership committee. The new secretary will be Mrs. Omagene Gillespie of the Head Start staff in Charleston. Miss Pat Grojean, instructor at the Southeast Missouri State University Child Study Center, was elected treasurer.

Members of this organization plan to hold major meetings for the new year in September, November, March and May at central locations in both Delta and Southeast areas. Program, legislature, membership, activities, nominating and hospitality committees have been named. The committees are represented by members from various counties in these two areas of the district. They also represent Head Start, University of Missouri Extension, Division of Welfare, day car centers, kindergartens, sursery schools, child study centers, family day care centers and others interested in the education of young children.

Membership in the Southeast and Delta AEYC district is open to any person interested in the education of the young child. Art show planned

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. George Simmons will present a showing of oil paintings by her art students at First Security State Bank from Sunday until Saturday.

A reception is planned Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. at the bank. Approximately 25 students from the Charleston-East Prairie area will participate in the show.

Miss Linville, Ron Calbert unite in June marriage

MALDEN— Miss Brenda Linville became the bride of Ronnie Calbert June 9 in a candlelight service at Mt. Gilead General Baptist Church in Malden. The Rev. Billy Hamlett officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Calbert of Lilbourn and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Linville of Campbell.

A white arch decorated with baby's breath, wedding bells and rainbow- colored ribbons, two spiral candelabras and one arched candelabra and two large baskets of blue, yellow and white gladioli formed the background for the wedding.

Candlelighters were Debbie and Linda Sandefer of Campbell. They wore matching princess street-length dresses of light blue.

Mrs. Bill McMillian was organist. Mrs. Diane Moody accompanied Sherry Provance as she sang, "Wedding Prayer" and "God Bless This Day".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silken organza gown trimmed with lace, lace flowers and seed pearls. The elbow- length veil of illusion was held in place by a row of flowers.

Miss Shirley Powers was matron of honor. She wore a maize yellow gown accented with white lace, a matching yellow veil and carried an arrangement of multi-colored flowers with pink, blue and yellow and green ribbon streamers.

Bridesmaids were Debby Boyle of Malden and Rita Johnson of Lilbourn, sister of the groom. Miss Boyle's dress was green and Miss Johnson's was pink. They were styled like that worn by the matron of honor.

Miss Melissa Jan Linville, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a light blue gown matching the other attendants and carried a white basket of multi-colored flowers.

The bride's gown and those worn by the attendants were designed and made by the bride, her sister, Mrs. Dewight Griffin, and the bride's mother.

Best man was Raymond Tindle of Lilbourn. Groomsmen were Ricky Calbert of Lilbourn, brother of the groom, and Lester Johnson of Lilbourn, brother- in- law of the groom. Ringbearer was Rickly Johnson of Batesville, Miss., cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Cathy Curtner was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Jane Calbert of Lilbourn, sister- in- law of the groom; Mrs. Alice Linville, sister- in- law of the bride; and Mrs. Bobbie Johnson of Batesville, Miss., cousin of the groom, assisted with the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Calbert

Out- of- town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Lott, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Calbert and Ruthie and Travela Austin of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Bendonna Biggs of Tiptonville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Johnson of Batesville, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. James Walker of Steele; Mr. and Mrs. Roy McClellon of Nebraska; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lunbeck of Gideon; Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Kennett; Mrs. Pat Twitty of Lilbourn; and Tamera Myers of Sikeston.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Calbert will make their home in Malden.

Miss Hendrickson weds David Cain

ST. LOUIS— Miss Virginia Ann Hendrickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Hendrickson of Ferguson, recently became the bride of David E. Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Cain, of Bertrand, at First Church of God in St. Louis.

A reception and buffet followed.

Miss Valeria Hendrickson of Ferguson was the maid of honor, and Jack Heckert of Sikeston was the best man.

Groomsmen were John Brewer of Sikeston, Tony Cain of Bertrand and Steve Williams of St. Louis. Bridesmaids were Linda Hogan, Patsy Francis and Debbie Ellis of St. Louis.

The couple will live in Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. David E. Cain

Infants need stimulation to reach growth capacity

By SHAREN K. HUNT
University of Missouri Extension

The need for stimulation during infancy and early years has been researched often. The question now is, "Does lack of it limit intellectual growth permanently or just slow it down for a while?"

Dr. Jerome Kagan, Harvard University, believes a young child's capacity to learn isn't regidly set by early experience. He feels they can and will catch up if sociey doesn't stomp our their self-confidence during the interim. This view came about after he compared the intellectual growth of American middle class and poor Guatemalan children.

According to custom, Indian babies are left alone, with nobody to talk or play with them , for the first year. By the time they're 1½ years, they're about 4 months retarded, according to American middle class toddlers of the same age.

He found by the time they're 11, their intelligence is par with American standards. This bounce back and catch up ability is lacking in American children, Kagan feels, because of society's stress on the "sacred tasks" of learning to read and write at certain ages.

He feels American educators are giving up on "slow learners" too soon. If each were allowed to develop at their own speed and taught subjects of interest, they'd catch up. "He suggests art, public speaking, or music instead of always traditional 3 R's.

An environment where a child's self-esteem is safeguard and normal intellectual development expected, (although maybe not immediately) provides the setting for a "catch up". This hopeful conclusion though, isn't believed by all child development specialists.

In a later issue of the same journal, Burton White said 3 to 5 - year-olds who develop poorly don't pull themselves out of it. "Someday we'll learn how to turn children around, but we don't know how now." Long range effects of stimulation have been studied by psychologist Kangas. He says, "just living" may produce a rise in one's IQ scores over the years, but stimulation increases the gain.

He had tested a group of men and women as preschoolers, then again 10 and 15 years later. The years between childhood and early middle age resulted in rise of approximately 20 points. Among the men, the highest gains were made by those who had made highest score as boys.

For the women studied, those who had highest IQ scores as girls showed smallest gains as grown-ups.

All the men had stimulating occupations, while most women were homemakers or worked at dull and unchallenging jobs. This causes Kangas to wonder if routne repetitive chores that are so often a women's lot both at home and on the job, actually retards intellectual development. The more stimulating an individual's life, the higher his or her IQ gains is likely to be, regardless of age.

Tornado Report

In the 11-year period from 1960 through 1970, 7,428 unpredictable tornadoes were reported in the United States. They killed more than a thousand people and might have killed many more except for an efficient warning system.

CASALS AGAIN AT MARLBORO

MARLBORO, Vt. (AP) — The Marlboro Music Festival will open its 23rd season on July 7. Pablo Casals, 96-year-old cellist and conductor, will be in residence for the 13th summer since 1960.

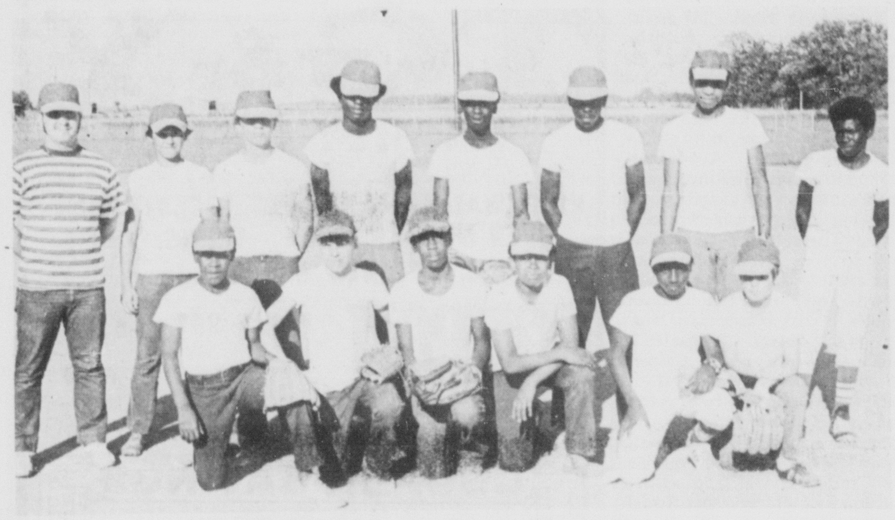

Chamber orchestra and chamber music concerts will be on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, plus three on Fridays.

Artists come from all over the United States and many foreign countries. They explore new repertoire and exchange ideas. They rehearse more than 100 different works each week and programs are made up only a day or two before each performance.

Butler, Cloud star

CHAFFEE — Sikeston's 13- year old Jr. Babe Ruth all-stars won a double header Thursday night to advance to the finals of the district tournament.

Pitching stood out for Sikeston as Hal Butler hurled a one-hitter in gaining a 12-5 victory over Tri-County in the opener. Roger Cloud fashioned a three hitter in recording a 9-7 victory over East Prairie in the nighcap to win the losers bracket and advance to tonight's finals against undefeated Chaffee.

Sikeston opened up a 7-0 lead against Tri- County, taking advantage of walks and some timely hitting to back Butler's one-hit performance.

East Prairie held a 3-1 lead going into the fourth inning of the second game, before their pitching gave out. Sikeston pushed eight runs across the plate, gaining only three hits during the big frame.

Don Francis rallied in the top of the seventh, scoring four runs, but falling two runs short of a tie and three of the lead.

Chaffee meets Sikeston at 7 tonight. A win by the host would send them to the state tournament at Ft. Leonardwood early next month. A win by Sikeston would force the two into a playoff game at 9 p.m.

MACON, Ga. (AP) — The new Macon franchise in the Southern Hockey League will be called the Whoopees.

Atlanta businessman Gerald Pinkerton said Thursday his team will play a 70-game schedule and will wear red, white and blue uniforms.

"When the name 'Macon Whoopees' was first proposed, we thought it was terrific," he said. "But we wanted to see how the people in Macon would accept it. They obviously have and now we hope we can give something back to the community."

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles announced today that Karl Wallenda will walk across a cable connecting two light standards at Memorial Stadium next Friday night.

Wallenda, the 68-year-old patriarch of the "Flying Wallendas," is scheduled to make the walk about 100 feet above the ground between games of a twi-night doubleheader between the Orioles and the Oakland Athletics.

Blankenship wins

Security National downed Leible Implement 6- 3 while the Elks had to forfeit to Optimist in Thursday night play of the Sr. Babe Ruth League.

Leible Implement slipped across the plate for a single run during the first and added another in the third, while holding Security National scoreless. It was not until the fourth inning that Security National scored, bringing across five runs to take the lead. Leible could not come back although they did add one run to their score. The only extra base hit of the game came from Leible's bench as Dyer hit a double. Blankenship picked up the win while Shatzley had the loss.

Smith leads romp

Thursday night's Musial League action saw Nunnelee, behind the pitching and hitting of Smith, take an 18-4 runaway over Potlatch while Bank of Sikeston scored a narrow 9-8 win.

Smith was the star of the game with his strong playing. He was four-for-four at bat and three of those hits were doubles. Claiming the win was also added to his credit. Though Nunnelee held only a slim edge of 3-1 during the first inning, the lead was widened as Nunnelee brought around three additional runs in the second and Potlatch failed to stay with them. Either team could not score in the following inning but Nunnelee came on strong for the final inning as they made 12 trips around the bases. Jackson, Buchanon, and Carnell also added doubles to that of Smith's. Bell and Branson hit doubles for Potlatch. Bell pitched the loss for Potlatch.

Both teams struggled to capture the lead but the score remained tied at 2-all until the third. Harts went into the lead but Bank of Sikeston came back strong and broke through for six big runs to capture the lead. Harts brought across two runs but could not produce any more and had to take the loss. Perry, the winning pitcher, along with Daniels had the extra base hits for Bank of Sikeston with doubles. Huff and Scott slapped doubles for Harts.

Security pitching shines

Jaycees captured a 15-10 win over A&B and Security National Bank won still another behind the pitching of Jeff Young when they took a 6-3 decision from Kiwanis in Thursday night's play in the National Little League.

A&B picked up a single run in the first inning to stay with the Jaycees by one, but could not maintain a steady bat and went scoreless for the next three innings. The fifth inning proved to be big ones for both teams as they both came around seven times, but Jaycees still held their lead through their early scoring. A&B went on to score two more as did Jaycees but the game was all Jaycees. Burgess pitched the win.

Security National remains at the top of their league with strong pitching and fielding. Young held the Kiwanis scoreless until the third when they finally were able to produce runs and brought across three. Security National maintained the lead, however, having picked up four runs prior to the third. Holding on to the slim edge, Security National added two insurance runs in the final inning to capture the win. Echols had the only extra base hit of the game with a triple for Kiwanis.

Bridger protests

Despite a protest by Bridger, Fabick's Self pitched a 15-0 shutout to take the win while Ryan defeated Caproco 10-6 in the American Little League Thursday night.

Fabick took command of the game during the first inning as they blasted 10 runs across the plate to take an early advantage. Bridger could not make their hits count, gaining only three against the strong pitching, which kept them scoreless. Fabick added one and three runs in the third and fourth respectively but suffered no threats from Bridger. McDowell, along with Self, had doubles for Fabick. White had the only double for Bridger. McCoy was the losing pitcher.

Ryan had to come from behind to catch Caproco and take the lead. At the bottom of the second, Caproco led 6-3 but Ryan was not out of it as of yet. Caproco could not hold Ryan and they broke through for five runs. Caproco could not come back and had to suffer the loss. Polley, Williams, and Wood provided the hitting power for Ryan as all three had doubles. Warfield and Fraser had doubles for Caproco. Doster was the winning and Woodard the losing pitcher.

SPORTS

CHICAGO — Arnold Palmer and Bruce Crampton fashioned five-under-par 66s to share the first round lead in the $175,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

CLEMSON, S. C. (AP) — Ed Emory, who guided Brevard, N. C., High School to a 35-7 record during the past four seasons, has joined the Clemson coaching staff, head football Coach Parker announced Thursday.

Emory, a native of Lancaster, S.C., will coordinate the junior varsity program for the Tigers.

LIGHTER BAT HELPS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Shortstop Dave Concepcion of the Cincinnati Reds is sold on light bats. After switching this spring — at the suggestion of coach Ted Kluszewski — from a 34-ounce to a 31-ounce bat, Concepcion paced the Reds in hitting after the first 17 games.

If you're planning a driving vacation this summer, the gasoline shortage has to figure in your plans.

Different areas of the country will experience different degrees of shortage this summer. Just as they are now. From mild to fairly severe.

So, depending on where you are at any given time on your vacation, you won't know what the situation is up the road. Some stations may have all the gasoline you can take on. Others may be limiting the number of gallons they will sell to each motorist. And still others may be out completely.

Some stations may close early to stretch their supply—or not open at all on some days. Others will be running at their normal hours.

We're producing more gasoline than ever before but there's just not enough to go around. So we are allocating our supply to our dealers on a monthly basis as fairly as we know how. We will be delivering gasoline to our dealers all summer long but to stretch their supply, they may find that some of the above measures are necessary.

But all this doesn't mean the situation is so unpredictable that you should give up your trip. We do urge you to exercise a little consideration when you choose a vacation spot though. And a little care in getting there.

Here are some tips we suggest:

Fill your tank in the morning. That's when stations are most likely to have gasoline. Some stations will sell only so many gallons per day, and then close early.

Also try to be off the road early. You don't want to be on the road late at night if the stations in that area have shortened their hours.

Think about keeping your tank at least one-quarter full. That way, you'll have a reserve in case you come across a station that can't supply you.

There are also many things you can do to conserve gasoline along the way, and get more miles to the gallon.

Make sure your car is in tune before you leave. A tuned car will get about 10% better gas mileage than one that is out of tune.

High-speed driving is hard on mileage, so slow down. If you drive 50 mph instead of 60 mph, you can save about one gallon in ten.

Try to maintain a steady speed. You'll get better mileage than if you constantly speed up and slow down. For example, passing a line of cars on a two-lane highway may get you there a little sooner, but the extra acceleration means your car is going to gulp a lot more gasoline.

If you tow a boat or trailer, uphill climbs cut into your gas mileage heavily. Build up your speed before you reach the hill, so your engine doesn't have to work as hard on the way up.

Use your air conditioner sparingly. When it's running, you get less mileage per gallon.

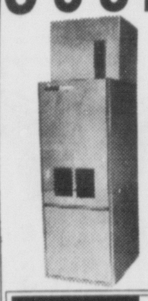

All of us at Standard Oil hope these tips will be helpful to you this summer. And that your vacation is an enjoyable one.

SLOW DOWN
Save gasoline.

Williams resigns First Baptist post

Joe Williams, minister of music and education at First Baptist Church for four years, announced his resignation this week to accept a similar position at Lochwood Baptist Church in Denver, Colo. His resignation is to be effective Aug. 15.

Since coming to Sikeston in 1969, Williams has not only directed the First Baptist choir and a graded youth music program, but also has been active in the Century Men, a 100- voice arm of the Southern Baptist Convention radio and television commission, and the Music Men of Missouri, a branch of the Missouri Baptist Music Director Association which he has served as president.

Joe Williams

A graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee, Okla., where he was a member of the Bison Glee Club, and Southwestern Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., Williams has also served churches in Texas and Oklahoma and came to Sikeston from First Baptist Church in Lebanon, Mo.

He and his wife Flo have three daughters, Pam, Missy and Kathleen.

Witnesses to attend convention July 11-15

Russell Knauer, presiding minister of the Sikeston congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said nearly 50 local members will attend one of a series of international conventions scheduled July 11-15 at Royals Stadium in Kansas City by The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York.

Other meetings in the United States are planned at Tiger Stadium in Detroit, White Sox Park in Chicago, Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, Oakland - Alameda Stadium in Oakland, Calif., Astrodome in Houston, Three Rivers Stadium in Philadelphia and Yankee Stadium in New York.

Knauer said six Spanish-language conventions are also scheduled in the U. S. All meetings are set for June and July.

Internationally, five conventions have been arranged for Canada, 12 in Europe, five in Asia, 17 in South and Central America, three in the South Pacific and seven in Africa during 1973.

The theme of the conventions worldwide is "Divine Victory" and will stress the Witnesses' belief in the certainty of divine intervention in human affairs in order for man's problems to reach an ultimate and permanet solution.

Impact Team to sing

The Impact Team, made up of senior high school teen-agers from across the Missouri District of the Church of the Nazarene will sing at a Southeast Zone rally to be held 7 p.m. Saturday in the new First Church of the Nazarene facilities on Highway 61 North.

The Missouri District is made up of cities and towns in the eastern half of the state. The Southeast zone includes Anniston, Cape Girardeau, Charleston, Matthews, Morehouse, Sikeston Eastside and Sikeston First churches.

The Nazarene Young People's Society zone chairman is the Rev. C. Conrad Carrigan, pastor of the Sikeston Eastside church.

Brush with death alters youth's life

By JEANNE MAYNARD

NEW MADRID — "I didn't quit doin' drugs because I got shot; I quit doin' drugs because I met Jesus Christ." These inspirational words from Randy Krebs, 22-year-old New Madrid youth who miraculously recovered from a critical gunshot wound in his left ear, explain his touching message, "From Tragedy to Triumph."

Krebs was injured in a gangster-style shooting last Nov. 19 and his companion, Carl David Blankenship, 24, of New Madrid was murdered. Robert C. Howell, a 20-year-old from Chicago, to whom three pounds of marijuana was to be sold on the night of the shootings, was convicted on Jan. 30 of slaying Blankenship and received a life sentence.

According to Krebs' courtroom testimony he talked with Howell on the night of Nov. 17 telling him he could get three pounds of marijuana at $150 per pound.

Krebs testified that he was with Blankenship the following night and that about 11 p.m. the two drove to the Brotherhood Club in New Madrid. He said he went into the club and gave Howell a "joint" (marijuana cigarette). The two discussed where they would meet and decided on the home of Howell's stepgrandmother, where Howell was staying.

Krebs testified that after leaving the club, neither he nor Blankenship could remember which house Howell was staying in, so they drove Blankenship's car to the IGA Store parking lot where they waited about 15 minutes for Howell to appear.

Howell got into the backseat and the three drove to where the marijuana was hidden.

After Krebs handed Howell the marijuana, he said they drove about 200 yards down the levee road. "We told him we would give him a better price and sell it to him for $300 instead of the original $450." Krebs testified.

Shortly after that, as he turned his head toward Blankenship, Krebs was shot in the left ear. "I didn't hear the other shot, and when I came to later, I heard movement in the car and lay still." Krebs said.

Continuing, Krebs said he regained conciousness later and attempted to get out of the car, but could not, as he seemed to be paralyzed on the right side. He did not remember being taken by ambulance to a Sikeston hospital or being taken to Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

"That night I was at the point where I knew that I didn't have anything or anyone else to turn to except God." Krebs commented in a personal interview last week. "I went to God in a small prayer, realizing that I couldn't help mayself, and that I had no control over what could happen."

Krebs admitted that the change in his life didn't occur overnight. "I spent months in heartache, wrestling with a lot of things in my life." Like Jonah in the Old Testament book of that name, Krebs says he tried to run away from God. "I knew that God was real, but I just didn't know if I could live the kind of life that God wanted me to."

The whale that swallowed Krebs was the first courtroom trial that he had ever experienced. "At the time of the trial." he said, "I hadn't let Christ be No. 1 in my life,and I was trying to carry all of the burden, all the guilt, all the anger and hatred upon myself."

Shaking his head, Krebs recalled, "It was almost unbearable for awhile. I thought I was close to the point of a nervous breakdown, not being able to eat or sleep. I had been living one night over and over a thousand times, asking myself questions for which there was no answer.

After the first trail, in which Howell was convicted of killing Blankenship, Krebs was discouraged by the fact that many of his friends were still involved in the drug scene. "It was like a guy had died and it didn't mean anything to anybody. I expected everybody else to change because of what had happened to me. But that's not living up to reality; it just doesn't happen that way." he explained.

A letter of encouragement came from a girl who had been using drugs. She explained that Kreb's experiences had deeply affected her life. "I realized that if it meant anything to just one person, it was important," he said.

"Shortly after receiving the letter, I talked with a Baptist pastor in St. Louis. I decided then to let the Lord have His way in my life; to do what He wanted to with me," he continued.

"By the time of the second trial," Krebs said, "I was trusting in the Lord." Krebs was on the stand for one and one-half hours. Drawing a breath, he said, "That's a long time to have someone shooting questions at you." It was the strength of God, Krebbs explained, that helped him withstand the pressures while on the stand.

The second trial ended with Howell receiving a 10-year sentence for felonious assault with intent ot kill in the shooting of Krebs.

Now fully recovered, Randy lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Krebs of New Madird and has been speaking to groups of young people throughout the Southeast Missouri area. In his message, he relates his personal testimony and tells of the change God has made in his life.

Before becoming involved with drugs, Krebs was quite athletic minded, and thought playing basketball was one of the most important things in life. Of his two years of college at The School of the Ozarks in Point Lookout, he commented," I didn't want to face the fact that I just wasn't good enough (to play college basketball)."

Krebbs explained that when that important thing was taken away from his life, it seemed to destroy something inside him. At this point, he first began to experiment with drugs because "I was just curious."

As the experiment grew into a habit, Randy found himself getting "hooked". He recalled "I could forget about everything and just get zonked on dope, and worry about everything when I came down."

Now, the "new" Randy explained, "I don't have any desire to do any drugs. Drugs is death on the installment plan. If someone is doing drugs, I feel he is just asking for a tragedy in his life. Just like it happened to me, things can start so innocently and become so serious."

Krebs says his trials are by no means over, explaining, "I've probably received a lot of criticism and ridicule, and nobody likes to be laughed at or put down. But whenever I'm feeling low, I try to consider it as a cross I must bear, and when I stop and think about it, it's nothing compared to what Jesus has done for me. If you believe in what you're doing, it doesn't matter what people say."

Despite the hardships, Krebs continues to spread the gospel.

"I'm not ashamed of what I'm doing, he declared. "God isn't going to let anything happen to me that I can't handle. "I don't do this for people to say nice things about me. "I'm doing it for Jesus Christ. Each of us has our own personal ministry, and He wants me to share what He has done for me with other people."

Krebs believes that his mission is to be directed especially to young people. "I fell that I know what young people are going through today because I've been there," he said.

As a young boy, he attended the New Madrid Baptist Church regularly. On looking back, he says his backsliding began because he didn't seek God every day, so he couldn't grow and mature as a Christian. "God doesn't quit," he added. "I fell away from God."

Expressing his concern, Krebs commented,"I know that young people today are hungry; they are searching for some answer. To me, drugs is a cop-out."

When asked how he manages to keep his faith strong in the midst of so many tribulations, Randy replied, "God allowed this to happen to me. Maybe this was the only way he could get my attention, and he has my attention now.

"To keep our communication open, I keep three important things in mind. First, I talk to the Lord just as I would talk to a person in this room. Second, I study his word." As he lifted a Bible from the end table, he added, "This is where my strength lies; the Bible is sharper than any two-edged sword. And, finally, I have fellowship with other Christians."

When asked about his future plans, Krebs replied, "Each day when I get up, I try to turn the day over to the Lord. As for the future, I may go back to college, but I intend to do whatever the Lord has planned for me."

In conclusion, Krebs expressed his views about the "Jesus Movement". "I am not a Jesus Freak," he said, "and if anybody asked me just what I am; I would answer, 'I'm a Christian.' They have the right idea though, he commented as he raised his middle and fore fingers to form a "peace" sign, "in searching for peace; but peace is an individual thing."

With only his forefinger raised in the air, the spirit-filled young man concluded, "The only way to find real and lasting peace is this, one way, Jesus Christ."

From drugs to Bible

The "new" Randy Krebs speaks openly about the miracle of his life and the strength of his soul with the Bible in his hand of the changes he has experienced since turing to God after a close brush with death when shot in the left ear ear last fall while discussing the sale of three pounds of marijuana.

New Prospect names pastor

MALDEN— The Rev. Arlon Ayers of Bernie has accepted the pastorate of New Prospect Baptist Church near Malden.

The Rev. Mr. Ayers is a former Gideon resident. His wife is the former Esther Gray, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Gray, who were residents of the Clarkton and Gideon area.

Kite contest winners named

Winners of a kite- flying contest June 16 at Eastside Church of the Nazarene, Ralph at Betty Street, were Janice Mullins, first place; Vickie Russell, second; and Karen and Dennis Meyers, tie for third. Also flying dites were Karen Odum, Marjane Davidson, Richard Johnson, Rhonda Carrigan and Phyllis Ramsey.

The kite contest was held because the church was winning in the "Soaring in the Summer Contest," a state wide effort of the churches to top last year's Sunday School attendance each week this summer.

Doss joins staff of Cape church

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Elwood Doss Jr. has joined the staff of First Baptist Church as minister of music and youth activities. He was formerly employed by the Poplar Bluff School District as director of vocal music at the junior high level. He had taught high school level instrumental and vocal music at Parma before going to Poplar Bluff.

Doss graduated in 1970 from University of Tennessee at Martin with a bachelor of music education degree with a major in voice. He will receive a master of music education degree from Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau in August.

Doss is well known as soloist in Southeast Missouri, having sung at the annual Southeast Missouri District Teacher's Association meetings in 1972 and in operatic presentations at Southeast Missouri State. He is also much in demand as a revival singer. This past school year he served as a guest clinician on junior high vocal music at the music division meeting of the annual district teachers' meeting. He is to direct the music at the World Missions Conference at Camp Windemere near Roach, Mo., sponsored by the Missouri Baptist Convention in July.

Doss , the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Doss Sr. of Union City, Tenn., Route Four, is married to the former Carolyn Sims of Mason Hall, Tenn. They, with their nine-month old son Chuckie, will make their home at 1715 Georgia in Cape Girardeau.

THE BIBLE

89. The Attack on Jericho

The inhabitants of Jericho kept the gates of the city tightly shut. No one was allowed to come in or go out. But the Lord spoke to Joshua, telling him that the city would soon belong to the Israelites.

The Lord then told Joshua how to conquer the city: "And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days. And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of ram's horns: and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets. And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout: and the wall of the city shall fall down flat, and the people shall ascend up, every man straight before him." (Joshua 6:3-5)

Joshua followed the commandments of the Lord, and for six days the people marched silently around the city of Jericho, returning to their camp each day.

THE CRISIS OF RELIGIOUS CORRUPTION

Scene from 'Pajama Tops'

Claudine (Jo Ellen Felkner) and Jacques (David Ziegenhorn) do some behind-the-scenes plotting in the current Sikeston Little Theatre production "Pajama Tops."

(Daily Standard photo by Tim Ludwig)

By TIM LUDWIG

Pajama Tops is a farce set in a small town in France. Actors in the Sikeston Little Theatre have chosen a tough one this time. The actors and theater staff have, as their custom, done a fine job in every respect. The act is fine, the set and planning are all well done, the lighting and make-up carefully applied; but somebody came up short on the choice of plays.

It must have been inevitable that in a season which included memorable plays and performances such as "Fantastics" and "Fiddler on the Roof," that something would go wrong. It has and it hasn't. A stated before, what the theater troupe could have done, they have; and they have done it well. It's what they should have avoided that brings them problems. They should have picked a better vehicle for themselves.

Basically, the plot runs like this: George (Jim Crenshaw) has a mistress in another small town who gets invited to visit George and his wife by George's wife, Yvonne, (Annette York) who thinks that Babette's (the mistress) husband (non-existant) is George's business partner in a bag (that's right-- bag) business. Well, Babette doesn't know that George is married, so she makes the trip. In the meantime, Leonard (George's old friend played by Jim Wenneker) shows up uninvited and announces he is planning to stay at the villa. This happens without Yvonne meeting Leonard so there is another character to thicken (muddle) the plot.

About this time, Babette shows up when Leonard is away and George has to tell her that he is married and try to figure out a way to salvage the situation. Somewhere in all this mess, is a maid named Claudine (Jo Ellen Felkner), who is determined to become a skilled "courtisan" and practices her flirtations on every man in sight. Also lost in the confused crowd is a character named Jacques) David Ziegenhorn), who becomes the butler in George's household, and, so it turns out, is the real husband of Babette (remember Babette?) whom no one thought had a husband.

The impression is made somewhere in the first act, that one is now watching a sporting contest, since all the players choose up partners for the big deception. George stays with wife Yvonne. Babette picks Leonard to be her "husband" while the deception is played on Yvonne and Babette's real husband and Claudine sort of get thrown together. Out of all this madness comes the final character, the inspector of police (Ron Peek) who tries to turn the whole situation into a scandal to enhance the end of his career.

Everything does resolve itself at the end of the play, but the in-between period presents a crazy, mixed up bunch of scenes. Jim Wenneker, director of Pajama Tops, has done a very good job in working the actors through the less- than - great script. They all do a very enjoyable job and make the show as good as it can be.

Pajama Tops isn't a bad show, it's just less than the Sikeston Little Theatre has a right to expect from itself. The many scenes do have a good bit of comedy in them that will make for a pleasant show for those of you who will see it. You may have a little difficulty keeping up with the antics of the principal characters as they go through their multiple affairs, but if you can, you should have an enjoyable, if light, evening.

The Sikeston Little Theatre isn't ending with the kind of play we might have hoped for after "Fantastic" and "Fiddler," but here's hoping that next year they will find all of their plays more worthy of what they can do.

Ozark balloting begins

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Members of the striking Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association began balloting Thursday night on a contract with Ozark Air Lines, which the union's negotiators have not recommended be rejected.

Ozark's operations have been halted for 71 days since the April 19th walkout by the 560-member mechanics union which conducted a seven-day strike against the midwest air carrier in April of 1971.

Union members in St. Louis, Chicago and at outstations were balloting on a tentative agreement reached in negotiations Tuesday night in Washington. Terms of the new pact were not announced pending the results of the vote.

The AMFA's walkout, which halted Ozark's operations in 62 cities and 15 states, was originally over wages, but terms of a back-to-work agreement were held up over another issue involving the use of closed-circuit television in mechanics' work areas.

"The results of the voting will be announced Friday night or early Saturday morning depending on how close the St. Louis-Chicago vote is," Samuel Smith, AMFA Local 24 president, said.

"If the vote is too close, to where the outstations could change the outcome, we'll remain mute until the outstation voting is tabulated. It could be 14 days before we could divulge that information," Smith said.

He would not speculate on the outcome of the balloting.

"It (the agreement) is an equitable settlement, but if the members do decide they're not satisfied, we will go back to the (negotiating) table," the union leader said.

An earlier tentative agreement was rejected by the mechanics on May 10.

Mine talks progressing

BONNE TERRE, Mo. (AP) — Some progress was reported Thursday in talks aimed at ending a 29-day-old lead mine strike and further negotiations were scheduled today.

"We got pretty close. We've made some progress," Jewell Henson, district representative of the United Steelworkers Union said after a day of talks with officials of the Cominco -American lead mine and a federal mediator.

Henson said there was progress on economic issues other than wages.

Both sides said earlier that economic matters were the main issue in the strike, which shut down the mining operation in the Missouri Lead Belt on May 31.

Two other area lead mines were shut down earlier this year by USW strikes for varying periods.

Danforth files ouster suit against prosecutor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Marvin L. Smith, Texas County prosecutor and a law partner of Congressman Richard Ichord, is the target of an ouster suit filed Thursday with the state supreme court by Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

Smith, a Democrat elected last fall without opposition, is accused of soliciting and accepting payoffs and committing other acts of misconduct.

Smith, 27, reached in the offices of Ichord, Smith and Lay, would not comment today about the suit. He acknowledged he is the law partner of Ichord and Hubert Lay, a member of the state park board.

The suit asks that Smith be fined $10,000 and outsed from office.

The complaint says he "received compensation and other consideration to neglect his official duty."

The prosecutor is charged with 15 violations, several involving accepting money from persons who were charged with drunken driving or speeding violations.

Smith is charged with taking a check for $150 from Andy Vollmar on April 24. Vollmar had received a summons from a conservation agent for not checking a turkey, but was never prosecuted, the suit said.

He was accused of dropping a charge of petty stealing and failure to lodge careless driving charges against Caroline S. Collins, who he had previously represented in a divorce case.

Another allegation said Smith amended a charge of driving while intoxicated against Albert Rex Pearcy, to make it careless and imprudent driving while drinking. Pearcy, who Smith was said to have also represented in a divorce case, was given a $100 fine and a suspended jail sentence.

Deadline extended

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- U.S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison today announced that the Small Business Administration has extended the deadline for those wishing to make disaster loan application to July 31. Burlison said the extension will also apply to applicants who already have filed for a SBA disaster loan.

The 10th District counties which were included in the Presidential disaster declaration of April 24 and are eligible for SBA assistance are as follows: Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Jefferson, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Reynolds, Perry, Ste. Genevieve, Scott, Stoddard, and Wayne.

Officers elected at Legion meeting

NEW MADRID -- James R. (Ras) Jones, was elected commander of Brown Twitty Post 595 of the American Legion Thursday. The owner of Jones Grocery and ward one alderman, he succeeds John Langley.

Other officers elected were Cornelius Beaher, vice commander; J.B. Horton, adjutant; Bill White, finance officer; H.H. Townsend Jr., historian; Ralph Higgerson, chaplain; Louie Griffey, service officer; and Bud Mowery, sergeant-at-arms.

What's the law?

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Every time fisherman Albert went on a vacation, so did the fish. Consequently, to change his luck he ventured to another state where he hoped the angling would be better. And as fate would have it, his luck did change. It got worse.

Not only didn't he catch any fish, he didn't even get near the water. While he was digging for worms i n the back of his motel, he was collared by the local gendarmes and was arrested for violating a local law that prohibited anyone from digging for worms without a license.

"I've heard of sheltering little girls," protested Albert in court, "but not little worms. Certainly a law prohibiting the digging of worms can't be legal. If it was, every bird in the area would have to be areested. The lockup would look more like a bird cage than a jail."

"They're our worms," retorted the prosecuting attorney, "and we've got a right to protect them for our local residents. While we may not have too much to be proud of in this area, what we are proud of is our succulent worms."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict luckless Albert of digging for worms without a license?

this is how the judge rules: YES! The judge held that it is not unreasonable for the people of a town to have a prior right to their succulent worms ahead of outsiders. Consequently, concluded the judge, the local ordinance was perfectly valid and Albert was quilty of violating it. (Based on a 1952 Maine Supreme Judicial Court Decision)

Commission has priority list

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Clean Water Commission has prepared a priority list for federal grants, and representatives of small communities say grant criteria may leave them high and dry.

Over 100 communities and sewer districts have been rated in competition for $82 million in federal money for water pollution control projects.

Approval of grants is up to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which approved only $1.9 million last year.

Cities or sewer districts were assigned points based on five criteria:

1. Treatment facilities on streams or water supplies of limited water quality.
2. Facilities on streams of limited amounts of effluence.
3. Sewage collection systems needed to supplement treatment facilities in existence.
4. Type of pollution problem and proximity to lakes or streams.
5. Population.

Representatives of small communities such as Oregon, California and Pilot Grove said at a hearing Thursday they are ready to begin work on collection systems but they need federal matching funds and were afraid top priority would be given to larger cities constructing treatment facilities.

Jack K. Smith, executive secretary of the Clean Water Commission, said that in some cases, collection systems will be classified along with a total treatment system in the grant applications.

Glenn Waller, representing Oregon, a community of 900, said small towns cause as much pollution per person as do many cities, and population should not be a determining factor.

Several witnesses from small towns needing money for pipelines said they were afraid there would not be any money left after it is granted to those communities needing treatment facilities. In another matter, Smith said the commission has tabled a regulation saying a septic tank could not be placed on any development smaller than one acre.

The rule met resistance from subdividers in lake areas.

Reps. Flavel J. Butts, R-Camdenton, and Morris G. Westfall, R-Half Way, said retirees couldn't be attracted to lakeside developments if their homesties had to be at least one acre in size.

Smith said the regulation had been aimed at heavily populated developments on 3-to-5 acres in size.

Raymond Beck, director of public works for Columbia, told the commission he thought Columbia should have been given a 30-point rating instead of 26.

In the past, the priority for federal money was based on how quickly a community finished its engineering plans and obtained local financing.

At the top of the federal funds priority list with 30 points was Springfield. At 29 points was Perryville. SpringfieldJames River and SpringfieldAirport Trunk were given 28 points.

Receiving 27 poings were Lebanon, Anderson, Licking, Mountain Grove, Campbell, Farmington, Springfield-Little Sac River, Springfield-Wilson Creek, and Richland.

At 26 points were Kirksville, Moberly, Columbia, Belton and Warrensburg.

Listed at 25 points were Freeburg, Monett, Hillsboro, Wentzville, Osceola, Mount Vernon, Crystal City, Branson, Vienna, Carrollton, Southwest City, Pilot Grove, Bethany, Lower Big River Sewer District, Lake Adelle Sewer District, Poplar Bluff, Delta and Flat River.

Rated at 24 points—Lee's Summit, Calhoun.

Rated at 23 points—Holcomb, Weatherby Lake, Grandview, Princeton, Dearborn, Bowling Green, Hughesville, Risco, Nevada, California, Concordia, Ellisville, Lawson, St. Joseph—102 Drainage District, Platte County Sewer District No. 3, Palmyra, Salem, Glaize Creek Sewer District, Clinton, Greenwood, Browning, Wardell Treatment.

At 22 points—Clarkton, Kansas City, Fulton, Independence, Clark, Mercer, Wyatt, Springfield-Fulbright and Bloomsdale.

At 21 points—Pleasant Valley, Odessa, Princeton, Peculiar, Troy, Montgomery City, Pevely, Cole Camp, New Bloomfield, Grain Valley, Richland-Collection System.

At 20 points—St. Joseph, Metroplitan St. Louis Sewer District, Kansas City-West Side Design, Kansas City—Big Blue design, Metroplitan St. Louis District—Bonfils, Lemay and Bissell, Cape Girardeau.

At 19 points—Kingsville, Charleston, Wardell Collection.

At 18 points—St. Charles, Little Blue Valley Sewer District.

SPRINGBOKS TO BE SHOT

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — About 10,000 springboks, the antelope which is South Africa's animal symbol, are to be shot on farms in this country for export to Europe this year.

Bond set at $2,000 for Cecil on no funds charge

BLOOMFIELD -- Fourteen cases were heard by Judge Koss Blomeyer in Magistrate Court Thursday.

Preliminary hearing was set for July 5 for Gary Cecil, charged with no funds check. Bond was set at $2,000.

T.J. Mason pleaded not guilty to a charge of speeding. Trial was set for July 5.

Joe Hogan of Gray Ridge and George A. Douglas of Advance pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxiated and were fined $100 each and ordered to surrender their operators licenses.

Larry J. Harris of Puxico and Eugene Larry Isaac pleaded guilty to charges of possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, and were fined $50 each.

Eight others paid fines for various charges:

Victor S. Roe of Fisk, charged with careless and imprudent driving, $10 Glendall Ray Watkins of Bernie, improper muffler, $5 and expired vechicle license, $5; Charles M. Franklin of Dudley, careless and imprudent driving and causing and accident, $15. Clyde E. Handley of Bernie, no operators license, $10 and unauthorized plates $5; Earl S. Smith of Ft. Smith, Ark. . entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of careless and imprudent driving and was fines $19.

Burl Calvin Stevenson, overlength on trailer, entered a written plea of guilty and was fined $10; Earl Lee Miller, no operators license, $5; and Charles Everett Tully, careless and imprudent driving $15.

Jacksons fined

CHARLESTON -- Appearing this morning in City Court were Jimmy Jackson , 43, of Charleston, , who was fined $22, and Lille Mae Jackson 41, of Charleston, fined $23, on charges of disturbing the peace by fighting. They were arrested Thursday.

2 teens arrested

BLOOMFIELD -- Two Malden teen-agers Mark Wieland, 18, and Carol Riggs, 17, are in custody of Stoddard County authorities today on charges of possession of marijuans.

The couple was arrested early today in Bernie by Bernie police. Bond was scheduled to be set today.

Extra-high platform shoes have been criticized by driver education instructors as possibly hindering brake and gas pedal maneuverability.

Gas demand expected to rise 5 to 8 per cent

WASHINGTON -- Is there a gas shortage? Yes and no. The situation is not critical, but motorists will be inconvenienced by spot shortages from time to time and place to place. Overall demand is greater than supply, and until refineries catch up, motorists will experience difficulty in getting all the gas they need in many parts of the country this summer and fall.

The likelihood of gasoline shortages this summer and fall does not add up to a disaster or crisis situation. It simply means that there is a relatively small difference between supply and demand. That is the assessment of Charles J. DiBona, Executive Director of the President's Energy Council

DiBona estimates that gas demand will increase from five to eight percent this summer. If the increase is on the low side, there may be no shortages at all, he says. But if it is on the high side, some regional shortages can develop and it may be necessary to redistribute available supplies.

WHAT CAN BE DONE? The NADA Energy Committee believes that the gap between gasoline supply and demand can be closed if industry, government and motorists take positive action.

Industry must accelerate its efforts to find and refine more motor fuel and government must assist industry with realistic programs and policies. These are long-term solutions and NADA will make recommendations in these areas at a later time.

In the meantime, the gas gap can be narrowed by the driving public. Dealers should urge their customers to get behind the effort by:

Cutting highway speed by at least 10 miles per hour (one gallon in 10 is saved by reducing speed from 60 to 50 mph);

Limiting use of automobile air conditioners and other accessories;

Using the grade of gasoline compatible with engine requirements;

Practicing smarter driving techinques such as avoiding jackrabbit starts, driving at steady speeds, keeping tires properly inflated, warming engine sufficiently before driving; and,

Keeping cars properly tuned and maintained.

WHAT CAN DEALERS DO? Dealers should assure their customers that there will be sufficeint gasoline for all motorists -- and for all cars, big and small -- providing that industry, government and the public cooperate in a national effort to lick the problem. NADA believes the gas shortage will be short lived if long-term solutions by the industry and government are speedily implemented and immediate remedies are applied by the driving public. Dealers must help by:

1. Enlisting customer support of the national effort through personal contact with customers, making appearances before community civic groups, through use of newspaper, radio and television advertising, and by personal example;

2. Encouraging local and state industry and dealer organizations to study the problem and take appropriate action; and,

3, Supporting NADA recommendations for industry and government policies and programs.

WHAT NADA WILL DO. The NADA Energy Committee will investigate all aspects of the energy problem -- in particular the gasoline supply situation -- and report the facts to NADA members.

We know this now: A shortage of natural gas in the past few years caused manufacturers and consumers to fall back on fuel oil last winter to heat businesses and homes. As a result, crude oil that normally would have gone into building up gasoline stocks was used for heating oil. IN addition, gasoline demand has exceeded expectations because new cars with emission controls use more gas per mile than cars without controls. The Federal Office of Emergency Preparedness estimates that emission-control equipped cars account for 300,000 barrels daily of additional gasoline demand. On the basis of these facts and additional evaluations by the Energy Committee, NADA will make specific recommendations to industry and government.

These facts and recommendations will be reported to NADA members.

In addition, the Energy Committee will study and evaluate the increasing number of proposals by Federal and state governments to limit the use of cars and trucks. These proposed limitations include restrictions on the size, weight and design of cars and engines, taxes on parking and commuter travel, mandatory car pools and bans on downtown traffic.

Whenever possible in its reports to members on the gas supply problem and restrictions on car use, the Energy Committee will suggest ways dealers can help shape industry and government policies and programs, and also how they can conduct their businesses in order to survive in a fast-changing economic and social environment.

Dean admits discrepancy

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III conceded today he may have named the wrong hotel as the site of a key Watergate cover-up meeting.

It was the first factual discrepancy to turn up in five days of testimony before the Senate Watergate committee by the ousted White House counsel, who has said President Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up.

As the committee neared the end of Dean's cross-examination and a 10-day holiday break, Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., directed that the White House be asked to give Dean permission to photocopy his voluminous government and personal records still at the White House.

Dean, noting he has been asked to provide much data from those records, said "I would hope the committee would put the White House on notice or they may not be there when I get there."

Another set of records, provided to Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., by two Washington hotels, led to Dean's acknowledgement that he may have been wrong in naming the site of a meeting June 29, 1972 with Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal attorney.

But Dean told the committee he clearly recalled the substance of the meeting despite confusion over the site. He has testified the meeting concerned raising hush money for persons arrested at the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972.

Dean said he had met Kalmbach at the hotel coffee shop and then in a room at the Mayflower Hotel. Gurney produced records showing Kalmbach was registered at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, about three blocks away.

Dean, first saying perhaps Kalmbach registered under a false name, then said he had always confused the two hotels despite 10 years' residence in the Washington area.

Gurney said this cast doubt on other Dean testimony. After a brief pause and a whisper from his attorney, Dean said the coffee shop in the StatlerHilton is named the Mayflower. The audience in the packed hearing room broke into applause and cheers.

In a morning session punctuated by folksy stories told by Ervin and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., Dean was led again through some of his accounts of meetings with Nixon.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked Dean about White House actions taken against its political enemies, especially members of Congress.

Dean said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., had been under surveillance for a time by White House-directed agents. He said he knew of no buggings or break-ins employed against Kennedy.

Dean insisted that he took any role in planning of such operations only under extreme pressure. In this area, too, he often repeated testimony he had given earlier in the week.

Dean said also that he knew of no legal work done at the White House exploring whether Congress has a right to subpoena the President.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, one of the Democratic members of the committee, acknowledges there are forged signatures of his 1970 campaign chairman and treasurer on his campaign finance report filed in New Mexico.

Responding to a question Thursday night, the New Mexico Democrat said he was shocked to learn of the forgeries. He said he has "tried to ascertain who affixed these signatures, and I have not been able to find out."

Otherwise, Montoya said, the New Mexico report is in order.

The Washington Post, which made the inquiry, said today that New Mexico law governing campaign financing requires that a report be filed with the secretary of state "executed and subscribed by the chairman and the treasurer of the political committee."

Shortly before Dean began his fifth day of testimony, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman, appealed to President Nixon to give a sworn account of his meetings with his accuser, Dean, but said he believes the Constitution bars the committee from compelling the President to testify.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, DN.M., the first questioner of Dean today, asked about legal work performed by White House lawyers on separation of powers and executive privilege.

Dean said neither he nor anyone else he knew of had worked on such matters in relation to any subpoena of Nixon. Montoya did not directly suggest that Nixon be subpoenaed.

The committee heard Thursday that the President suggested through an aide last March that his attorney general publicly attack a charge by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., that top White House aides knew of or condoned political espionage.

FEMALE MOTORIST WARNED ON SAFETY

NEW YORK (AP) — The female motorist, regardless of Women's Lib, should refrain from being a "good guy" and picking up male hitchhikers, a safety expert advises.

Marjorie B. May, a safety director for the Greater New York Safety Council, says, "The woman who plays Good Samaritan by giving a hitchhiker a lift or stopping on a lonely road at sight of a disabled car is taking a greater risk than a male motorist under similar circumstances.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean, soybean meal and soybean oil futures prices were down the limit for one session the the Chicago Board of Trade today. Other commodity prices were mixed.

Trade in the three commodities of the soybean complex had been suspended Thursday after the government ordered a halt to exports of soybeans and the products because of a critical stock situation.

On the resumption of trade, soybeans distant options were down the limit of 40 cents a bushel and the nearby July down the limit of 80 cents at $10.00. Soybean oil was down 100 points, or 1 cent a pound and soybean meal $15 a ton, with no trade in the July option.

Wheat futures were ½ cents a bushel lower to 2 cents higher, July 2.60; corn was 3¾ lower to 3¼ higher, July 2.10 and oats were ¾ to 1½ lower, July (new) 91 cents.

Juveniles break into concession stand

Three juveniles were taken into custody Thursday afternoon after they were seen breaking into the concession stand at the ballpark behind Southwest School.

Police were called about 1:45 p.m. by a teacher at the school who saw the boys break into the stand. Officers found the window broken out and three boys with candy and gum stolen from the concession stand.

Police were still deliberating this morning whether or not to turn the boys over to juvenile authorities. Two of the boys were 13 years old and one was 14.

Police today announced three arrests. They included Edward Lee Stinnett, 514 William for assault and battery; William Lloyd Gooch, 304 Kramer Drive, careless and imprudent driving; Shane Wagoner, 156 Jefferson, careless and imprudent driving.

Correction

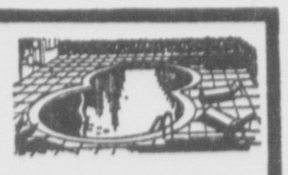

NEW MADRID— A default judgment for $1,368.62 principal for delinquent sales tax, plus $136.86 penalty and three per cent monthly interest from June 10, 1965 awarded Tuesday in New Madrid County Circuit Court to the State of Missouri, was against John W. McCulloch only, and not against Mitchell Hogan Jr. of Wardell as stated in The Daily Standard Wednesday.

The case was filed against Hogan but was dismissed for failure to obtain legal service of the petition on him.
